WOULD AVERT COAL STRIKE

Pinchot in Conference With Operators and Miners.

MEETING HELD AT HARRISBURG

Governor of Pennsylvania Places Before the Conference Statistical Information He Had Obtained From Divers Sources—Vice President Murray Representing President Lewis at the Parleys.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—Armed with statistical information, which he gathered by telephone, telegraph and conferences, Governor Pinchot today met the representatives of the anthracite operators and miners in conference here.

Pinchot definitely laid before the representatives his plans to avert an anthracite coal strike at midnight next Friday.

During the past few days the governor has worked for 18 hours a day "to amass all the information possible" on the anthracite mining industry of Pennsylvania. He explained to the operators' and miners' representatives his purposes and plans in summing them here in an effort to keep the mines turning out coal, either under a new agreement or with some new temporary move, after the wage contracts expire on Aug. 31.

The representatives who were summoned to the conference arrived here shortly before the hour set for the conference. There were no preliminary conferences with any members of either group. It is understood that the miners will insist on practically the same terms they have held out for at the New York and Atlantic City conferences, the wage increase, check-off and an eight-hour day for all mine employees.

Pinchot's first effort is to reach an agreement with each group on the rockbottom basis on which they will continue to turn out the anthracite fuel. Several delegations came here from the Pennsylvania mining districts to urge both for and against a recession in the miners' demands.

Throughout the conferences Pinchot said he will act "as a representative of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania," and in that capacity alone. He is not the personal agent of President Coolidge in the controversy between the operators and miners, he said.

Reports of conditions and sentiments in the anthracite fields, statistics of wages, coal production and distribution and a statement of his legal powers under the laws of Pennsylvania were included in the information the governor gleans from a dozen sources.

In the place of John L. Lewis, international president of the miners, who is ill, Philip Murray of Pittsburgh, vice president of the United Mine Workers, is in charge of labor's delegation at the conferences.

SEE COMPROMISE

Officials at Capital Expect Settlement of Anthracite Fuss.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Governor Pinchot's plan for averting a hard coal shutdown contemplates a compromise between the deadlocked operators and miners, Washington officials predicted. The principal feature of such a settlement, it was said, would be a wage increase for the miners of possibly 5 or 10 per cent. With this basic question out of the way, those who have followed the controversy expect the check-off, the second issue in importance, and all other demands, to be cleared up without serious difficulty. Washington has been convinced for some time that both sides were eager for a settlement that would save their faces. The operators particularly are believed to be desirous of averting a tieup, because of a fear of the effect upon the industry of the government's plan to flood the anthracite consuming states with substitutes and to educate the people to the use of them.

NEWS BRIEFS

More than $1,000,000 damage was done by hurricanes which recently swept the Atlantic coast of Central America.

Alfred Jensen, arrested with John Galloway on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Robert Jaeger, Black Hawk (Wis.) recluse, confessed that he struck the blows which caused Jaeger's death, according to Sauk county authorities. Robbery was the alleged motive.

POINCARÉ'S WORDS

France to Stay in the Ruhr District Until She Is Paid.

Paris, Aug. 27.—"Heaven helps those who help themselves. We stay in the Ruhr until we are paid."

These words in the speech of Premier Poincaré at Condorcourt definitely destroyed the last lingering hope that France would consent to make some concession to the British viewpoint in order to conserve the entente.

The premier spoke at the dedication of a plane commemorating the arrival of the first American at the trenches. "The American army broke the springs of the German military," he said lauding the part America played in the war and followed by expressing the regret that a Franco-American alliance had not resulted. "If Germany does not decide to pay, we will be forced to repeat 'pay or stay,'" said the premier. "It is vain to pretend that Germany has already paid 42,000,000,000 gold marks, or even 25,000,000,000, to the reparations commission, as stated by the Washington economic institute, an organization of which I never before heard. This false estimate by the Washington institute demonstrates what we would have to expect from international experts."

MADE SACRIFICE TO SAVE TREATY

Uncle Sam Surrendered Right to Fortify Philippines.

CONCESSION MADE TO BRITAIN

American Delegation to the Washington Armament Limitation Conference Conceded the Right to England to Fortify Singapore—Inside Story Told at the National Capital For the First Time.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The inside story explaining why the American delegation to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments surrendered the right to fortify the Philippine islands, while conceding the right to Great Britain to fortify Singapore, was told here for the first time.

In a nutshell, the situation was this:

Baron Kato, late Japanese premier, who headed the mikado's delegation, violently protested against the original proposal that both the Philippines and Singapore be exempt from fortification restrictions. He announced flatly that Japan would not enter into any of the treaties if she had to agree to both bases being developed, but that she would not object so strongly to just one of them.

Elihu Root, Kato and Balfour then got together in secret session and Mr. Root, in line with the American policy of making all concessions and asking none in return, readily submitted to the abandonment of the Philippines and the retention of Singapore for future fortification. "Save the treaty at all costs to the United States," was the prompting spirit.

The real question arose from the first draft of article 19 of the naval pact. But article 19 never appeared in print. American army and navy experts, who had assisted in drafting it as perfectly fair to all sides, never saw the article, they said, after it left their hands until it had been modified to suit the demands of Baron Kato, which singularly resulted to the benefit of Great Britain, with whom Japan was agreeing to abrogate her alliance of long standing.

Authorities here who related the incident pointed out as likewise highly significant that while Japan was objecting to two great military bases at Manila and Singapore, and threatening not to sign the naval treaty, she was allowed to escape without mention her own highly developed fortifications on the island of Formosa, and her great army maintained there on the pretext of exterminating bandits. It has been realized by American military strategists from the beginning that in the event of trouble between this country and Japan, the Philippines will be assailed from Formosa.

POLITICAL PRISONERS TO BE LIBERATED

Unconditional Pardons Recommended for Twenty-Two.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Unconditional pardons for the Sacramento group of political prisoners are recommended in a report made by Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania to the joint amnesty committee. The Sacramento group includes 22 of the remaining 34 "free speech offenders" still serving sentences under the war-time espionage act.

Senator Pepper reported that he went into each case on its merits, adding: "Having determined in this way what the evidence was against each man, I next tried to allocate the items of evidence to the several counts in the indictment. In this connection I treated the counts as they had been treated by the court of appeals in the defended cases coming up from Chicago."

"Upon this analysis of the evidence and the allocation of the several counts, I came to the conclusion that such proof of violence as the record disclosed was referable either to counts adjudged invalid in the Chicago cases, or to the count under which the sentences imposed had all been served. This process left the only remaining count (espionage act count) with little or no support in the testimony."

LIEUT. COL. G. REINIGER

Developing Organized Reserve and National Guard Officers.

"My net conclusion was that in every case a pardon ought to be granted and I made a recommendation accordingly. In my judgment, pardons when granted in these cases should be unconditional. Annexing conditions seems to me to be inconsistent with the theory upon which pardon is recommended. The men ought to be in or out, and in either alternative without ifs and buts."

DOINGS IN OHIO

Speed Trap Warning Issued.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Statewide warnings to beware of speed traps, many of which are operated illegally, were issued by Fred H. Caley, president of the Ohio State Automobile association. Denying practices which he labeled as "malicious, nefarious, and often criminal and brutal," Caley gave notice that the 74 automobile clubs affiliated with the Ohio association had embarked on an even more drastic campaign to run "fee-grabbing" squires and roadside constables out of their pernicious business.

Trampled by Horse.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 27.—Sergeant J. Reese of the United States army, here to break wild horses for the army service, is in a Youngstown hospital severely injured as a result of being kicked and trampled by a horse. He suffered injuries in the head, back and arms and a possible fracture of a leg and perhaps internal injuries. His home is in Kentucky.

Claims Record Wheat Yield.

Columbus, Aug. 27.—What is said to be Ohio's record wheat yield was made this year by Charles Karns, a Miami county farmer, who produced 527 bushels of wheat on 10 acres, an average of nearly 53 bushels per acre. He grows potatoes or corn, wheat and clover in rotation. Potatoes preceded this unprecedented wheat crop.

Luncheon Served on Flying Boat.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Luncheon was served to eight guests on the aeromarine flying boat Balboa, while traveling at a speed of 65 miles an hour, 500 feet in the air. Five of the guests were served in the forward cabin and three in the rear. It is said to be the first time luncheon was served under such circumstances.

Injured a Second Time.

New Lexington, O., Aug. 27.—David Middaugh, 30, world war veteran, sustained a crushed left arm when it was caught in machinery at a Junction City plant. He had just returned to work after being in the hospital for two months from injuries received at the same plant when he was caught in an elevator shaft.

Minister Missing.

Toledo, Aug. 27.—Search for Rev. Andrew McMahan, 58, of this city, was begun by Chicago police on request of his wife, who declared he disappeared two weeks ago. Mrs. McMahan said her husband had been in ill health and that she believed he may have gone to Chicago.

Shoots Wife and Self.

Athens, O., Aug. 27.—McKinley Locke, 26, went to Milford and tried to make good his threats of murder and suicide. He shot his wife through the leg and then turning the weapon on himself sent a bullet through his chest near the heart. Surgeons say there is a chance he will recover.

Suspect Held.

Kenton, O., Aug. 27.—Hugo Wendland, 24, claiming Nebraska as his home, is held here as a suspect in connection with the murder of Sheriff William Van Camp at Brookville, Ind., two weeks ago.

DEAD KLANSMAN IS IDENTIFIED

Dozen Persons in Hospitals, Either Shot or Stabbed.

RESULT OF MIDNIGHT CLASH

State, County and Municipal Officials Co-operating at Pittsburgh and Vicinity in Measures to Prevent a Renewal of the Rioting—Leading Undertaker in Carnegie Placed Under Arrest.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—State, county and municipal authorities are co-operating in measures to prevent a renewal of the rioting which Saturday midnight resulted in the death of one man and the injury to many others, when a Ku Klux Klan parade attempted to enter Carnegie, a suburb, following the biggest conclave ever held by the order in this country.

The body of the klansman shot to death was identified in the county morgue as that of Thomas Abbott, 27, of Atlasburg, Washington county. At least a dozen persons are in local hospitals either shot or stabbed, and probably a hundred others are suffering from broken bones, bruises or minor wounds. The identity of those in hospitals is being carefully guarded, all information being refused by the hospital authorities on the ground that those receiving treatment for injuries suffered in the rioting are private patients. Well known men are reported to be among these patients.

Patrick McDermott, a leading undertaker of Carnegie, is in the county jail on the order of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, along with three other Carnegie men, C. K. Flaherty, Joseph Joyce and George Kimmel. It is understood all four will be held pending an inquest into Abbott's death.

Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the knights of the Ku Klux Klan, addressed a meeting of klansmen, klans and higher officers of the organization in Pennsylvania in the English room of the Fort Pitt hotel, and he announced that a reward of $2,500 would be paid for the murderer or murderers of Klansman Abbott.

In an official statement Evans caused by an attack on klansmen exercising their constitutional right "of peaceable assembly, free speech and free movement over the highways," by "an element of citizenry absolutely dangerous to the safety and cause of freedom."

Members of the Ku Klux Klan and their enemies are in an ugly mood and fresh outbreaks are feared. State police, county detectives and local police are keeping close watch for signs of trouble. Investigations are under way with a view to ascertaining the identity of the persons who fired into the head of the Klan parade as it was about to cross the bridge leading from Glendale to Carnegie.

LEWIS GIVES REASONS

Why the Anthracite Miners Will Not Accept Arbitration.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 27.—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, who is ill at his hotel here, went into details as to some of the reasons why the miners would not accept arbitration. He called attention to the fact that the miners have repeatedly asked for arbitration in the West Virginia fields, and at the present time there is a strike of 8,000 English-speaking miners in Maryland, where the operators have not only refused arbitration, but have even refused to deal with the officials of the union. "It is only where the mine workers in the pride of their strength are able to protect their own interests that arbitration is offered us for the purpose of stripping us of our armor," he declared. Mr. Lewis said that he was not a public officer, but that he was employed by the mine workers to represent them.

Run Over by Truck.

Columbus, Aug. 27.—Ellen Hines, 4, daughter of William Hines, is in a critical condition as a result of having been run over by an automobile truck in front of her home.

Struck by Automobile.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Hildegard Zangerle, 7-year-old daughter of County Auditor John A. Zangerle, was struck by an automobile and seriously injured.

SUSPECT "SWEATED"

Denies Any Connection With Murder of the Girl Bride.

Denver, Aug. 27.—Elsie Jorgensen Suttle, pretty 14-year-old girl bride, was murdered because she would not break her marriage vows for a former lover. The murderer is believed to have gone to the Suttle home in Colorado Springs with murder in his heart and either a 45-caliber revolver or a hammer in his pocket. While the slayer was hammering the life out of Elsie with his weapon, he pressed his knee on her chest with such force that her body was crushed in.

Jacinto Fernandez, Spanish youth, arrested by Denver police in connection with the crime, defied an all day grilling by police of this city and Colorado Springs. Termed the "hard-boiled sheik" by detectives conducting the probe into the slaying of Elsie, with head thrown back and eyes blazing, he punctured his cross-questioning with "find out if you can." The detectives intimated that evidence obtained both in Colorado Springs and Denver makes the case a strong one against Fernandez. Principal among the evidence is a packet of five "Jack" love notes, blood saturated, which were found beneath the pillow of the slain girl bride.

Clue in Kidnaping Case.

New York, Aug. 27.—The mystery surrounding the kidnaping of three-months-old Lillian McKenzie remains unsolved, but what is hoped may develop into a promising clue came from Mannington, W. Va., when two letters were received here telling of the discovery of an abandoned baby in that town. The child, about the same age as Baby Lillian, answers in a general way the description of the kidnaped infant. The authorities are investigating.

Burglars Loot Dwelling.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 27.—Burglars who last night ransacked the home of Fred Labelle, secretary of the chamber of commerce, carried off loot valued at $10,000. Mr. Labelle reported to police. The loss included silverware, jewelry, clothing and even a radio outfit.

Superstitions of Seamen.
If a man is ill at sea, his most critical time is when land is first sighted. If he survive an hour after the sighting of land he will recover. On some trawlers whistling is forbidden—it scares away the fish. Other skippers believe that to wash your face in the middle of a trip will break a spell of calm weather.

You cannot help being a politician. You cannot live for an hour without being a politician. Hand-Made Frocks for Summer Wear

Inexpensive Dresses Suitable for Home, Porch or Garden.

An innovation in cotton dresses has been reached by prominent American manufacturers, who have created charming but inexpensive frocks that are entirely made by hand and are ideal for morning wear either in the home, on the porch or in the garden. Despite their nominal cost, says a fashion authority in the New York Tribune, they are not only made by hand, but are hand-embroidered, their workmanship vying with the delicate needlework seen on dresses sent to us from France.

Frocks of this sort have been taken up with great enthusiasm by the shops throughout the country, where they are in great demand, as women are quick to grasp clothes that are attractive and colorful as well as comfortable. The materials used—ginghams and chambrays—have been chosen in preference to linens, as they retain their freshness, whereas linen would be less practical for a garment of this sort.

The trimmings employed on these frocks are applied motifs of sateen, gingham or linens applied to the dress with hand-embroidery, hand-embroidered monograms, drawn-work, Egyptian cross-stitching and needle-work in floral effects.

The chemise model with short sleeves is the basis of all these dresses—not the perfectly straight-cut chemise, but one with fullness at the sides of the skirt, the fullness achieved either by gathers or plaits.

One particularly striking model is developed from yellow and white-checked gingham. It has a collar, cuffs, belt and pockets of tan chambray stitched with bright red threads. On the bodice and pockets there is an embroidered monogram done on chambray and then applied to the dress.

Another frock of this sort is of tan and white-checked gingham combined with tan chambray. The bodice, which is of the plain colored fabric, has trimming bands of the gingham worked with a cross-stitch design done in red and black threads. The same dress may be had in different hues of gingham with needlework in a harmonizing color.

Hand-drawn work and dot embroidery done in white trim a charming dress of green chambray. The threads are drawn down the front of the dress, on the waist and on the sleeves. A similar model of tan chambray is also worked in white, while one of blue and white gingham is trimmed with a cross-stitching done in yellow and red.

The New Sweaters.

Jacquette sweaters that fasten smartly at the side with pearl or ivory buckle are most effective in today's styles when worn with skirts which match the sweaters in some stripe or pattern rather than as a whole. A desert-tinted sweater, for example, looks its best with a skirt in lighter tan which has a pattern of desert and orange.

Suits of Silk.

Silk suits are being shown in great quantities by the New York shops. Several of those seen were of black canton with a knife-plaited skirt and round-necked jacket done in all-over embroidery of gold and king's blue. Another model, this one three-piece, was of navy roshanara with cire ribbon bands in mist gray.

Winsome Cape Made Entirely of Ribbon

The very beautiful cape made entirely of ribbon, is of slate gray and varies in shade, becoming darker toward the hem. The hat is of tan horsehair, trimmed with self-colored lace.

Newest Set-in Sleeve, Full Under-Arm Line

This model illustrates the smart use of stripes. The semi-sports tailleur presents the new set-in sleeve, a full under-arm line and beautifully embroidered pockets.

Imported Fall Hats Display Gay Colors

Judging from the summary of colors made by the style reporters of the Retail Millinery Association of America from the early imports of French hats for fall, the season will be almost as colorful as the current one. This is what the association's bulletin has to say about it:

"The entire brown family will score again. Amethyst is suggested by the leading modistes. Some bright yellow is seen, but it is an open question as to whether it will remain very long. Bottle green is seen a good deal, and bright Egyptian blue tones up the autumn range. Indigo and navy are in the forefront of the blues."

"The current red vogue promises to be toned down to wine shades for the next season, with coral and geranium. Dark seal and Titian brown promise very well. So does gray, but beige is doubtful. In the metallic colors silver has the call. A feature of the incoming hats is the exploitation of color in the facings of mushroom and cloche shapes."

"In the materials metal brocades show up very strongly, and the combination of panne velvet and felt is seen. Some use of long-nap hatters' plush is noted. Wide ribbons of satin and velvet are used to make entire hats. In band effects hatters' plush and Lyons velvet combine, but velvet of this type is easily the peerless fabric for fall."

Furnishings of Homes Civilization's Register

When you step into a tasteful, moderately furnished room, do you realize, even in a small degree, what a factor the furnishing of your home is in the whole scheme of modern civilization?

The manufacturer and furniture dealer have as plain and manifest a duty in educating the home-maker in the selection of furniture as you have in preaching civic beauty and higher moral standards.

When you assist in creating the home of taste you are ministering to culture and intelligence. One cannot very well continue without the other.

It is a proven fact that no home maker can associate himself with household goods in which the kindred quality of each is well established and inter-related, without being improved by the contact.

Mental efficiency, moral breadth and social uplift are all promoted and maintained by our intimate environment.

And what environment is more constant than good furniture?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Plain Tailor-Mades for Fall and Winter Wear

The fall and winter seasons of 1923-4 will witness a gain in production and distribution of plain and semi-plain dress goods.

With the heads, backs and busts of women everywhere decorated with embroidery, it seems to be a logical conclusion that the smart set will be driven to the other extreme, viz., plain tailor-mades, if they wish to appear as being distinctively dressed.

In the exclusive New York shopping district one notes coat dresses made from navy blue worsted twills and bearing all the earmarks of a skilled ladies' tailor.—Dry Goods Economist.

Modern Cabinets.

The modern cabinets are so attractive in their proportions and finish, and possess a certain mysterious interest suggested by their closed doors, that they are considered almost indispensable for the living room made to live in.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operation. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOSIER in your home.

TRACE WORLD WAR TO SERB COLONEL

Made Effort Too Late to Avoid Tragedy at Sarajevo.

AFTERWARD LOST HIS LIFE

Lieut.-Col. Dragutin Dimitrijevitich, former leader of the military party in Serbia and chief opponent of the civilian group led by Premier Nicholas Pashitch in the summer of 1914, was the principal character in the plot which resulted in the murders of Serajevo on June 28, 1914, that started the world-wide conflagration, according to Prof. Stanoyevitch of the University of Belgrade, who has written a pamphlet, "The Murder of Archduke Franz Ferdinand: A Contribution to the History of the Origin of the World War."

Professor Stanoyevitch says that his information was obtained from statements made by persons in close touch with the situation at the time of the murder. His charge cannot be denied by Dimitrijevitich himself, as the latter was court-martialed and shot in 1917; nor can Major Voyislav Tankozitch, the right-hand man of Dimitrijevitich, be called as a witness, as he fell in action early in the war.

The Serbian professor's pamphlet, just translated into German and published in Frankfurt, confirms the generally accepted theory that the Serbian government knew nothing about the plot, something admitted even by the leading Austrian statesmen; but it goes further and gives a plausible explanation of what nerved the arm of Gavrio Prinzev, the boy slayer of Franz Ferdinand and his wife, Hermann Wendel, a German writer well acquainted with Balkan politics, in summarizing Professor Stanoyevitch's work, says:

"In order to make plausible the situation among the Serbs from which developed the thought of killing the most visible representatives of the Danube monarchy, he outlines with sure strokes a century and a half of Serbian, indeed of South Slavic, development, and shows how the holding down of an elementary popular movement by the dynastic selfishness of the Hapsburgs was bound to exercise an evil, poisonous effect upon the minds of the masses.

"Of course, it was only among the revolutionary youth of the South Slavic part of Austria-Hungary where the ferment of action was working, for two successful, but also costly, wars had inspired all circles of the kingdom of Serbia with a desire for the longest possible peace. This desire was shared by the officers' corps, in which, since the murder of Alexander and Draga Obrenovitch in 1903, some symptoms inimical to the peaceful development of the state had shown themselves.

Enter the Leader. "Partly for the protection of their persons and partly also for the safeguarding of their personal interests, the officers participating in the conspiracy later formed an organization that more than once sought to influence the course of domestic politics. But the more the new conditions became firmer, through the development of democratic institutions, and the more the attempts at interference by this unconstitutional factor were resisted by the bourgeoisie, the more the group of conspirators retreated to the background of the stage of politics.

"But when the annexation crisis was working mightily upon the souls of all Serbs, the officer-conspirators of 1903 got into action. Because they regarded the patriotic society 'Narodna Odbrana,' which arose in connection with the annexation crisis, as of a purely cultural nature, a number of them in 1911 founded the secret league 'Ujedinjenje ili Smert' (Unity or Death), which soon had 300 members. It was modeled on the Italian Carbonari societies, and, quite in the style of old-fashioned conspiratorial romanticism, strove to solve the Serbs' national problem through revolutionary means and acts of terror.

"At the head of this league stood a man who seemed created to be a conspirator. As a twenty-seven-year-old Captain Dragutin Dimitrijevitich had, through his energy on the occasion of making away with the last of the Obrenovitchs, removed an unexpected obstacle from the road. Since then the gifted and educated officer, who in the meantime had advanced to lieutenant-colonel on the general staff, had remained the same restless character. An honest man, a fiery patriot, but also filled with stormy ambition, passionately in favor of secret, underground activities, dogmatic and not free from vanity, he exercised his fascinating power over the younger officers in particular. His most devoted comrade was Major Voyislav Tankozitch, who, under a quiet and mild exterior, concealed an unbridled and undisciplined nature and who, as a leader of roving bands in Macedonia, had displayed reckless courage. About political affairs, about the real needs of a state, they both had only faint and vague conceptions, but Dimitrijevitich was very determined in carrying out what he had in his head.

"After the meeting of Franz Ferdinand and Wilhelm II in Knopisht, Dimitrijevitich, then chief of the information division of the general staff, received news from the Russian general staff to the effect that the Haps-

burger and the Hohenzollern, there by the blossoming roses, had agreed upon an attack by Austro-Hungary upon Serbia, with German backing. Reports that he received from confidential men on the other side of the border about the coming maneuvers in Bosnia strengthened his conviction that these military exercises were to form the immediate prelude to the planned attack.

Plotting the Murder. "Longer deliberation caused him to reach the conclusion that only the removal of the Austro-Hungarian heir apparent, whom he regarded as the chief war propagandist, could save his unprepared and weary fatherland from the horrors of invasion and defeat. The idea of violence no longer frightened him, for several months before he had already agreed with a Bulgarian revolutionary committee upon an unexecuted attack upon Ferdinand of Coburg, and he had also once before sent a former leader of lawless bands to Vienna for the purpose of murdering Franz Josef or Franz Ferdinand.

"The course of events so willed it that just as he was considering the translation of his thoughts into acts two young men from Bosnia with the same intention came to see Major Tankozitch and ask him for advice and aid. With his customary determination, Dimitrijevitich took charge of the matter, had the Bosnians instructed in the use of arms by Tankozitch and then sent them to Sarajevo. On June 15 the colonel revealed to a meeting of the executive committee of the organization 'Unity or Death' what was going on, giving expressly as the reason for his action the necessity of preventing an attack upon the homeland by the big neighbor. If German war guilt philologists have all too innocently explained the war by Austro-Hungary upon Serbia as 'Prophylaxis Against the World War,' in Dimitrijevitich's way of thinking the murder of Franz Ferdinand was 'Prophylaxis Against the Austro-Serbian War.'

"But none of the members of the executive committee, except Tankozitch, would have anything to do with the deed planned, and they implored Dimitrijevitich to abandon his project. He promised to do so, and 'it appears,' says Stanoyevitch, 'that he made such an attempt, but either it was too late or the plotters in Sarajevo would not obey him. Things took their fatal course.'

"But if Dimitrijevitich, as the principal organizer of the attack, was not the very highest, but still was a high officer in an important post, the very fact of his guilt testifies to the complete innocence of the Serbian government. After both Balkan wars the victorious officers' corps, and above all the 'Unity or Death' society, had become somewhat presumptuous and was striving for influence upon political matters. Especially in the newly-won territory, in south Serbia, there were violent clashes between the military and civilian authorities. An order establishing the superiority of the civilian power had to be recalled under pressure of the secret league, and in the summer of 1914 Pashitch, the leader of the civil government, and Dimitrijevitich, chief of the military party, were facing each other as bitter, irreconcilable opponents.

"The conflict continued during the war, and in the spring of 1917 Dimitrijevitich was court-martialed—on a charge of having organized on the Saloniki front an attempt to murder Alexander, the heir to the throne, and to proclaim a military dictatorship—condemned to death and shot in June."

HISTORIC PISTOL FOUND

Firearm Is Estimated to Be at Least 200 Years Old.

A brass flintlock pistol, said to be more than 200 years old, was thrown up by a dredge in the Cowlitz river at Longview, Wash., and discovered by A. N. Thorndike.

The pistol was in perfect state of preservation with the exception of the handle, which was rotted off. The weapon was untarnished and unstained and bore upon one side a London trade mark. On the other side was a crest, consisting of a crown set above a crossed sword and gun. The gun was sent to a Portland gunsmith who estimated that it had been made more than 200 years ago. It is now on its way to London where it is hoped, some clue may be found as to its age, the former owner and something of the history surrounding it.

COINS $92,000,000 IN YEAR

Philadelphia Mint Turns Out 83,121,000 Pieces in 1922.

The Philadelphia mint turned out 79,221,000 pieces of domestic coin with a face value of nearly $92,000,000 and 3,900,000 pieces for Peru and Nicaragua in the fiscal year ended June 30.

Most of the year's work, numerically, consisted of 58,704,000 standard silver dollars, struck to replace those melted to provide bullion for the use of England in the East Indies. Other coinage included 1,597,000 gold double eagles, 538,000 dimes, 12,049,000 nickels and 1,431,000 pennies.

The coinage for Peru included 1,000,000 one sol silver pieces and 2,000,000 nickel five centavos. For Nicaragua the output was 500,000 one centavos and 400,000 half centavos.

FREAK TEMPLE IN MOSCOW

Cathedral of St. Basil Possesses an Amazing Variety of Towers That Are Unique.

The cathedral of St. Basil (also known as the Pokrovsky cathedral) in the Red square, Moscow, is one of the architectural freaks of the world on account of its towers, all differing from each other and representing in their variety of colors pineapples, melons and the like, says the Detroit News. It was begun in 1554 and was not completed till 1679. Plundered and desecrated by the French in 1812, it was restored in 1839-45.

The Uspensky cathedral, one of the sacred buildings in the Kremlin, Moscow, contains the oldest and most venerated holy pictures in Russia, as well as numerous relics of saints. The cathedral was built in 1475-79 by the Bolognese architect Fioraventi, in the Lombardo-Byzantine style, with Indian cupolas. The building has been repaired several times after being pillaged or burned.

Sheep Lived Long, Though Staked.

When the sheep were mustered for shearing on a Nebraska farm one was found to be badly "staked." A piece of wood 2 1/2 feet long entered the shoulder blade and came out under the belly. The end of the stick was touching the ground and had been worn smooth by the continual contact. Obviously the accident had happened some time before, as the flesh at the entrance was healed up, though the underneath wound was a bit raw. Ten minutes after the stake was pulled out the animal died.

A turtle, seven feet long and weighing 1,000 pounds, was landed at Douardenez, France. Its captors having difficulty in finding a buyer, the turtle somehow or other, with the aid of mischievous boys, righted itself on its legs. After taking a survey of the place, it plunged into the sea, promising no doubt in its own mind to give Douardenez a wide berth in the future.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

Oozing Fountain Pens.

An application of heavy oil to the joints of a fountain pen will effectively overcome the oozing out of ink at these places, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The types of fountain pens, having points which disappear by turning a section of the barrel, sometimes leak because of wear. To remedy this, soak the pen in warm water and permit to dry, particularly inside. Then apply oil on the spindle that is revolved. Heavy cylinder oil is the best for the purpose. The lubricant should be worked through the bearing from end to end. The pen is then refilled and excess oil wiped off.

Peter Kesler, a prominent retired farmer died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodore Lape, in Amanda, Fairfield county Ohio, Saturday, August 25, at 1:30 o'clock at the age of 92 years, six months and 21 days.

Mr. Kesler was born at Amanda February 4, 1831 and served during the Civil war in Company I, of the 38th regiment. He was married to Mary, daughter of Thomas Barr, who departed this life February 4, 1894.

To this union nine children were born three of whom preceded their father in death. He leaves to mourn their loss the following children: William, of Columbus; Ella, wife of Theodore Lape, Amanda; Perry, of Cleveland; Maggie, wife of Elmer Kesler, of Texas; Laura, wife of George Cruik, of Lancaster and Edith, wife of William Cromley, of Lancaster. Twenty-five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and a large circle of relatives and friends.

The funeral will take place at the Lutheran church at Amanda at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Burial at Dutch Hollow cemetery. The deceased was a brother-in-law of William Heffner of this city.

Deceased was the grandfather of Mrs. T. P. Brown and Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, of this city, and Mrs. Clyde Brinker, of Ashville.

FIRST LUTHERAN SYNOD ORGANIZED 175 YEARS AGO.

Sunday was the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the first Lutheran Synod in America. On that date in 1748, 27 years before the Revolutionary war, six ministers and 24 lay delegates met in Philadelphia. The ministers were Muhlenberg, patriarch of American Lutheranism Brandholtz, Hand-Handschuh and Kurtz, representing Pennsylvania; Provost Sandin of the Swedish churches along the Delaware and Hartwig of New York. The lay delegates reported concerning the efficiency of their pastors and the pastors reported the condition of their parochial schools. The common liturgy was examined and adopted, and after congratulatory addresses the new synod adjourned to meet the following year in Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

The organization was known at first as the "United Pastors," and the parishes as the "United Congregations." Later the name "Ministerium of Pennsylvania" was adopted. Only 10 of the 70 Lutheran congregations in Pennsylvania and adjacent colonies joined in the organization at first, but it grew rapidly, created a spirit of independence and self-reliance in the Lutheran churches in the colonies and set the example for synodical organization along the coast.

Itinerant pastors went as ministers into all of the colonies surrounding Pennsylvania grouped together the Lutheran people there into congregations, later leading to the founding of the Ministerium of New York, the Synod of North Carolina, the Synod of Ohio and others.

And the afore-said world's champion gave 'em everything he had in the matter of fist-cuffing effort. It was society day at the camp and more social lights and millionaires were in the crowd than history ever saw a fist champion do his training tricks. Jack Dempsey started the entertainment with a bit of pulley work and then followed with shadow boxing. After that came three bouts of two rounds each, then some work against the heavy punching bag, with the show topped off with some nifty work on the inflated bag.

VOTERS AT POLLS TODAY

Cosgrave Likely to Be Returned to Power in Ireland.

Dublin, Aug. 27.—The whirlwind campaign preceding the Irish elections ended last night in a perfect welter of oratory. More than 4,000 meetings, held in every part of Ireland, have prepared the men and women for the most heated election in memory. All impartial estimates of the results of today's polling indicate that President William T. Cosgrave will be returned to power. The meetings of the campaigns have for the most part been orderly and good humored, with few interruptions of speakers. The polls will close at 7 p. m. There is a total cessation of work of all kinds.

Just Wishing.

GAS THE BORERS

September or Early October is Best Time Says Entomologist.

When paradichlorobenzene first came into use for gassing peach tree borers three years ago, August was thought to be the best time to lay the rings of the substance around the trees. Subsequent experience in Ohio and elsewhere has indicated however, that August is a little early.

Wait until September or early October advises T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State university. But don't put it too late in October, he adds, as there must be sun enough to vaporize the powder, and allow the heavy gas to seep down into the ground, asphyxiating the borers.

Among commercial peach growers in the east and south, paradichlorobenzene has all but done away with "worming" the borers out with a knife, a tiresome and only half effective method. All of those who have given the new chemical trial according to directions report around 90 per cent borer control at a cost of but three cents a tree and without any discernible damage to young trees.

But trees less than six years old should not be treated with paradichlorobenzene, Professor Parks adds and around no tree should one put more than three-quarters of an ounce of the chemical.

The chemical is laid in a ring on firm soil around the tree trunk. Specific directions as to method will be given later and demonstrations probably will be held in the leading peach-growing counties.

MAY BE MONEY BERGDOLL BURIED BEFORE HIS ESCAPE

With the assertion Sunday of Lee Houser, a 28 year old farmer living near Hagerstown, Maryland, that the box he dug up last week on the Brownsville-Weavertown road contained between $100,000 and $110,000 in bills, besides approximately $10,000 in gold coin, speculation grew as to whether the money is that buried by Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, before his flight to Germany.

Complicating the situation was the assertion of C. S. Wheeler, a farmer, that he would lay claim to the fortune. Wheeler said his 10 year old son, Howard, is entitled to the money since he was the first to find it. Wheeler said his son was seated on a bank beside the road when Houser's pick exposed the box containing the money. Wheeler says Houser tore the box from the boy's hands and made off with it.

Within the boundaries of Ukraina are found the principal available deposits of iron ore in Russia. The development of the iron ore deposits of the Krivoi Rog district has been mainly responsible for the rapid growth of the Russian iron and steel industry, which now depends to an extent of about 70 per cent on the iron ore in the southern part of the country.

Bird's-eye, Cincinnati Fall Festival, Covering 20 Acres, Costing One Million Dollars.

The million dollar exposition which opens in Cincinnati with a great Night Pageant Friday, August 24, and the official opening of the Fall Festival and Industrial Exposition takes place at noon on the following day, and the attraction continues for the next fifteen days.

The Exposition is the first to be held in the Ohio Valley in almost fifteen years and is the largest that has ever been held in this territory. The exposition covers more than 20 acres, containing great Industrial Sections, Agriculture Section, Style Shows, Electrical Shows, a $50,000 electrical spectacle known as the Tower of Jewels; all of Music Hall, and two acres of laughs and thrills in the Frolic Avenue area where John Robinson, the veteran circus man, has massed the best attractions of all.

Inside Music Hall the big New York Hippodrome Show will entertain and in addition there will be twelve bands on the grounds continuously; thousands of dollars worth of souvenirs will be given away and every attention will be given to visitors from out-of-town. Arrangements are being made by all hotels, restaurants and semi-public buildings to entertain visitors. The entire downtown section of the city has been decorated with flags, electric lights and bunting and the entire Ohio Valley is interested.

CHARGE GERMANS BRING DOWN FRENCH AIRPLANES

Many Recently Lost in Ruhr Starts Strange Theory.

Paris.—A startling theory has been propounded to account for the number of airplanes belonging to the Paris-Prague service which have fallen in German territory.

It is believed by many officers of the French air service in the Rhineland and the Ruhr that the Germans have discovered a means of stopping the action of the magneto of airplanes in flight. The Germans are credited with first having found a way in Berlin to stop automobiles within a specified area and the French believe they have applied the method to airplanes.

The pilots and passengers forced to land are allowed to go free, but the plane and the freight it may be carrying are confiscated, the machine being, according to French reports, sawed to pieces.

Since January 1 Germany has regained the liberty of the air, so far as civil aviation is concerned, under the Versailles treaty, but they are unable to prevent foreign military planes from flying over German territory. Since the occupation of the Ruhr began they have refused to supply any weather reports which are so necessary to successful operation of the air services.

Sir Walter Raleigh's Pipe on Exhibition

The famous pipe which Sir Walter Raleigh first smoked in England was recently discovered and has been placed on exhibition in a London tobacconist shop. The pipe is said to be the one Sir Walter smoked on the eve of his execution in 1618. The pipe is shown above.

Automatic Car Control to Stop All R. R. Wrecks

Philadelphia.—Tests of an automatic train control system, under practical operating conditions on the Pennsylvania railroad between Lewistown Junction and Sunbury, Pa., justify hopes that the system may provide a successful solution of the problem of preventing train collisions automatically, regardless of human failures, the company announced.

The system has been in operation throughout the Lewistown branch since July 11.

The system is a combination of electrical, pneumatic and mechanical devices applied both to the track and to the locomotives. These devices slow down, or, when required, bring to a complete stop, any train which approaches too closely to another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite direction or when switches are improperly left open.

Cut in Two by Train Boy Lives 20 Minutes

Watsonville, Cal.—Although Carl Lee, nineteen, was cut in two by a train on which he was a stowaway near here, he not only lived for twenty minutes but was conscious long enough to talk in detail to hospital attendants.

He gave his age and home address, and explained that he was "beating" his way about the country. He said his mother was Mrs. Nettie Lee, Route O, Box 174, Indianapolis. He was attempting to alight from the train, he said, when he fell under the wheels. Physicians said the lad displayed extraordinary vitality and courage.

Two Girls Become Actuaries.

London.—Yet another profession which has hitherto been regarded as exclusive to men has received women into its membership. Two English girls, Miss Gladys Gregory and Miss Dorothy Davis, both of them young, are the first women to become qualified actuaries and members of the British Institute of Actuaries.

The Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"You seem in a good humor this morning," said the House Detective.

The Hotel Stenographer wiping off her typewriter was humming a merry little tune.

"Have you ever seen me any other way in the early morning?" she demanded.

"No," mused the House Detective. "I don't believe I ever have."

"You never will," declared the girl. "In the morning I am as eager for the day as a small boy for a sight of a circus. I always believe something wonderful is going to happen before the sun goes down or the rain dries up, as the case may be."

"Every day some one gets married or finds an oil well, or inherits money, or gets back an old sweetheart, or gets a new dress or finds a street car token or has some one invite them to the theater, or gets a dollar tip, or gets a love letter or has a nice compliment or gets a raise on pay or an unexpected kiss, or hears a funny story or goes to hear a man lecture on how the millium will, come when we have good roads everywhere, or discovers they can darn a run in a stocking so it will not show, or sees an airplane zoom overhead, or hears a little child laugh or scratches an itchy place or gets well of the toothache, or learns to walk on a wooden leg, or gets a nice mess of liver and onions."

"They can't just go right on happening to some one every day and miss me all the time. In the early morning I never know which is going to happen to me so I always look forward to the day with a lot of interest and excitement."

"It is good to be Irish and reasonably good looking and to live in a world where so many nice things happen to nice people, and you can't ever tell what old Lady Fate has up her sleeve besides the freckles on her elbows and I just know something nice is going to happen to me today."

MIAMI COUNTY FARMER
CLAIMING RECORD YIELD.

What is said to be Ohio's record wheat yield was made this year by Charles Karns, a Miami county farmer, who produced 527 bushels of wheat on 10 acres, an average of nearly 43 bushels per acre.

He grows potatoes, or corn, wheat and clover in rotation. Thus potatoes preceded this unprecedented wheat crop. The clover, before the potatoes, had a dressing of manure, and, when turned under, 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre were applied for potatoes. After digging that crop, the field was doubled disked and dragged and wheat seeded the first week in October with 200 pounds per acre of a 2-10-2 fertilizer. Two bushels per acre of certified Gladden seed were used.

"Good seed, good culture practices, legumes, manure, fertilizer, proper seeding," is Mr. Karns' program of wheat culture.

TO BANISH WARS

Harding Made Appeal to Newspapers to Co-operate in Move.

New York, Aug. 27.—Walter Wellman, newspaper man, author and polar explorer, gave the text of a letter written to him by the late President Harding, in which Mr. Harding made an appeal to the newspapers throughout the country to co-operate in a move to banish wars for all time. The letter, which was written especially for the editors of all American newspapers, but sent directly to Mr. Wellman, made it plain that Harding was not in favor of this country entering the league of nations, but expressed the conviction that a way would be found "to world association and attending world understanding."

To Retain Dr. Sawyer.

Washington, Aug. 27.—It was announced at the white house that Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer will be retained as physician to President Coolidge. Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, who as medical officer of the presidential yacht Mayflower has served for the past two years as assistant white house physician, will be retained in that capacity.

Garlic Cause of Big Wheat Loss

Makers of Flour Discriminate Against Product Containing It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Wheat containing the bulbets of garlic or wild onion is discriminated against by millers and often is sold at a price ranging from 20 to 50 per cent lower than No. 2 Soft Red Winter, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The farmer in the Atlantic coast region from Massachusetts to Georgia and as far inland as Missouri, where garlic is prevalent, harvests the garlic bulbets with his wheat. These are about the size and shape of wheat grains, and the two are difficult to separate, so that wheat containing them can be sold only at a discount. Bread made from garlicky flour, especially if eaten warm, has a pronounced odor and garlicky flavor. The money loss from garlic runs into millions of dollars annually.
Damage and Loss.
A survey made by the department of the damage and loss resulting from this weed in the state of Maryland and part of Pennsylvania where it is particularly bad, shows that practically all wheat produced in Maryland is infested with garlic. Garlicky wheat has a decidedly lower milling value than wheat free from garlic, due to the greater risk from spoilage, to extra cleaning or preparation required for milling, to the lower flour yields obtained, to the greater cost of manufacture, and to the lower market value of the flour product. Discounts for flour made from garlicky wheat vary from 25 cents to $1 a barrel.
Bulbets Sown Each Year.
Methods of eradication through readily applicable cultural practices suggested by the department have proved to be successful wherever employed, yet the survey shows that large quantities of the bulbets are being sown each year, through failure to get clean seed or through a failure to realize the extent of infestation in the seed being sown. Estimates made from samples taken from grain drills in the Maryland fields in the fall of 1921, show that as high as 200,000 bulbets to the acre were sown with the wheat in one case, the minimum being around 3,000 per acre. Nearly every farmer interviewed admitted that there was a small amount of garlic in his wheat, but frequently this small amount upon analysis proved to be 50 or more bulbets for each pound of wheat.

Killing Potato Bugs by Using Arsenate of Lead

Arsenate of lead is one of the best poisons to use, and for a liquid spray should be mixed at the rate of 1.5 pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. In small amounts one-half ounce or one heaping tablespoonful to a gallon of water gives the same strength. A little water should first be added to the powder and stirred until it makes a thin smooth paste. This paste can then be stirred into the required amount of water and the solution is ready for use.
With a good duster or dust gun a mixture of one part powdered arsenate of lead and fifteen parts of air-slaked or hydrated lime will be quite effective in killing the beetles.
A mixture of one part of paris green to twenty parts of lime is also effective. If no duster is available the mixture can be applied by shaking it on the plants through a cheese-cloth bag. The dust sticks to the plants better if applied when the dew is on.
—E. M. Page, Missouri Experiment Station.

Pasturing Sweet Clover
to Prevent Woodiness

Sweet clover has been condemned by many because it grows too rank and becomes so woody that stock will not eat it. This is true if it is not pastured heavily enough to keep it down. But if enough animals are kept on it so that it does not get more than nine or ten inches high, new shoots will be produced continuously which will be tender and palatable. If enough stock is not available to keep the sweet clover at the proper height, part of it should be mowed for hay, say the agronomists of the Nebraska Agricultural college. It should be mowed high enough (leave stubble at least eight inches tall) so that plenty of live buds are left on the side of the stems to produce a new crop. Unlike alfalfa, it does not send up new shoots from the crown after it has attained considerable growth the second year.

Refilling Small Silos
When Somewhat Empty

Farmers with small silos, who cannot store enough silage to run them all winter, can make their supply last longer if they will cut their corn, shock it, and when the silo becomes somewhat empty refill with the shocked corn.
This kind of silage is better feed than the shocked corn direct from the field although it is not as good as the silage that was put into the silo when the corn was at the right age.
It has been found that placing new silage on the old will not hurt either, provided there is no moldy silage on the surface of the old silage.

Largest Body of Fresh Water.
Lake Superior is the largest body of fresh water in the world. Its length, east to west, is about 400 miles, with a mean breadth of about eighty miles, so that its area may be taken as about 31,500 square miles. The maximum depth recorded is 1,008 feet and the height of its surface is about 602 feet above the Atlantic. It receives upward of fifty rivers. The lake embosoms many large and well-wooded islands, the chief of which is Isle Royal.

Near the Year's End.
The last orchids of the year bloom in September and October. They are the ladies' tresses, probably the most common of the orchid family in eastern North America, says Nature Magazine. All country dwellers know their stiff, upright, slightly twisted scapes and long dense whorls of small white blossoms. The two most common are the nodding ladies' tresses and the slender ladies' tresses.

THE NEWS

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

JOHN GAIL walked uneasily the length of the veranda, then came to stand before Linnette, with her bright quick glance and wistful smile. Linnette was a wistful, small person altogether. Perhaps it was her soft, shy appeal, which had caught Gerald Spaulding's exacting attention. John stopped before the low chair, in which Linnette sat sewing, and looked down upon her with something like compassion in his honest gaze.

"Friend," he began, "I want you to tell me the truth. Has Jerry Spaulding been making love to you? Because if he has—" John went on hastily, ignoring the flush of indignation which colored her cheek—"I must warn you, Linnette, that he is engaged to a girl in his own home city. Very best authority for the fact—the girl happens to be a particular friend of my mother."

"I know he has been taking you around a lot, and I know he is fascinating to women. Heaven knows why—some mysterious feminine illusion. And down in Georgia, where he spent last winter, one charmed pretty creature broke her heart over him. For got to mention this engagement of long standing while he courted the winter months away. Nearer home there's another fine girl who believes herself engaged to him. Linnette, has Spaulding been protesting love to you?"

The small head with its dark crown of hair was raised slowly. Linnette looked up from her work. The smile was there—it always had been a wistful smile.

"Don't bother yourself about Gerry and me, good friend," she said. "My heart shall not be broken like that of the poor young lady in Georgia. Neither shall I believe myself to be engaged to him. This girl whom your mother knows—what is she like, John?"

"A trusting creature, apparently. And, of course, adoring. Gerry would see to that. Linnette, I have been disturbed since he camped on your trail; feared—you—might suffer. You who are so true would see only truth in others. And if Spaulding should care for you above all others—a possibility, Linnette—even then I could see no happiness ahead. You forgive me, friend." Smiling he used the familiar term between them—"for having to warn you?"

Linnette folded the sewing very carefully. Then she arose, and John had to take the gentle dismissal.

When he had gone she made her way back to where the trees grew low. Gerry had sat with her often beneath one bending tree.

The low humming of a song reached her, Gerry's vibrant tone sounding a theme through all.

"Linnette!" he called. "Linnette!" His smile of greeting was the same, his handclasp as eager.

"Gerald," whispered Linnette, and her face was white in the effort of speaking. "You are betrothed, Mrs. Gail is acquainted with your fiancée." Gerry was apparently amused.

"Engaged? Not quite, my linnet. Josephine and I have been life-long friends. The engagement may be expected by our families, I'll admit. But when it happens I'll come to you with the news. So John Gail is jealous, like a vengeful woman."

"I came," Gerry went on, "to say good-by for a time. As short, believe me, as I can make it. Business calls. And if during my absence your friend should bring tidings of my association with the fair Josephine, remember, Linnette, we have been companions, more or less, since childhood. You will give me this rose you have worn for remembrance?"

Linnette gave him the rose. Very slowly, her wistful smile upon him, she fastened the flower to his coat. He recalled the appealing charm of her as the train bore him later back to the city where were his deepest interests.

Josephine? Of course marriage would be the inevitable outcome.

He had postponed the inevitable; perhaps as often as feasible. The little girl down in Georgia had been most entrancing. And there was the affair of Lucia, wearing an old ring of his mother's in belief of her bond to him. But Linnette with her shy enchantment would be hard to forget. He had not considered that Josephine and her family would make preparation for the day he had so faithfully planned. A wedding so near must be gone through with; unless Gerald decided to go back to the country town where Linnette lived. There was his promise to tell her, and there was the possibility that in her fondness for him she might yield to the plan of an elopement, providing his fondness for her proved as sincere as he now felt it to be. She was beneath the same bending tree where they had parted. He would try her affection abruptly. So Gerald told the news.

"I promised to tell you, Linnette," he said. "I am to be married."

She did not answer. Her dear face wore its old wistful, sweet charm, sweeter in some indefinable way. John Gail came across the lawn toward them.

"Linnette has told you the news, Spaulding?" John asked. "We are married; today begins our honeymoon tour."

Throws Out Cooked Fish.

It is said that there is a volcanic peak in the Andes that throws out from time to time dainty morsels in the form of fish already fried. This peak is called the Tunguragua. Underneath the mouth of the volcano is a subterranean lake.

During an eruption the suction draws up quantities of water, carrying along the fish, which are cooked by the inferno through which they pass. That is the scientific explanation of the phenomenon. But the natives hold that when an eruption occurs, ruining their crops, the mystic spirit of the Tunguragua provides the fish so that they shall not want.

NEW FORD TYPES

Greater Demand as Public is Acquainted
With High Standards.

Detroit, Michigan, August 25:—Introduction of a higher radiator, bringing new and improved body lines to all types of Ford cars, is announced
by the Ford Motor company.

The changes have just gone into effect and the various types are now in production.

While the larger radiator has been made standard on all types and while it has made possible other betterments in body design, there is no
radical departure in construction, but rather a general improvement which has resulted in more graceful lines.

The new radiator sets an inch and a half higher than the former and has an apron at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect of the fender on either side, giving a highly finished appearance to the front of the car.
The larger radiator also increases
cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new types is the Ford coupe which is of entirely new body design and construction, resulting in a more trim
exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a greater luggage carrying capacity.

From the dash there is a graceful
sweep in the cowl to the radiator
bringing a pleasing effect to the front.
The doors are wide and open forward making access and exit easy. They are heavily framed for rigidity and strength. The compartment at the rear has been enlarged to afford increased carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat, with divided cushions to afford easy filling of
the tank from the right side making
it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat. Ventilator in the cowl and a visor over the windshield add much to the attractiveness of the car. A new rear fender of more sturdy character
also is a feature.

Interior fittings are of choice material and the arrangement of the deeply cushioned seat has been effected so that at the rear there is a small recess shelf for carrying parcels. The rear vision window is much larger and oblong in shape. Door windows have been equipped with revolving type window regulators and door locks are provided. Side windows are equipped with the lever type window lifters.

Marked, too, is the improvement in the Four Door sedan. Highly popular since its introduction a year ago, because of its low, graceful lines, the car
now presents even much better lines
and a sturdier appearance.

This has been brought about by the installation of an entirely new cowl
with a graceful sweep from the dash blending into the larger hood and radiator. The change also affords an increase in leg room for occupants of the front seat.

In the open types, the touring car
and runabout, the cowl has been enlarged and flows in a graceful curve
to the higher hood.

The result brings a most pleasing effect to the exterior appearance of both types. The improvement in the touring car which came when the one man top and slanting windshield were introduced, is greatly enhanced by the larger radiator, the car appearing lower and more attractive than ever.
The effect on the roadster is likewise
most appealing, giving it a more rugged and sturdy appearance.

The new radiator also is extended to the Ford truck chassis, affording improved appearance and better cooling to delivery services.

These new Ford types and the generally recognized performance ability of the Ford under all motoring conditions, promise to bring a greater demand than ever before as the public becomes more fully acquainted with the higher standards and greater values which have been incorporated.
No changes are contemplated in prices.

KEEN ON JUSTICE

Sentiment One of the Strongest
Among Arabs.

Will Not Resent Punishment, but Deal Death to Man Who Mistreats.

Mr. Harry Roundtree, when traveling through the French colony of Algiers, had a curious experience in Torggourt, an Arab village in the midst of a desert.

Here, he says, were Arab blacksmiths hammering wonderful knives
from filed steel. I photographed one of these men at work. I was alone, and he demanded payment. When I refused, he was not to be put off by a poor joke in bad French, but leaped
to his feet and snatched my camera.
This I rescued, but he then threatened to smash it with his hammer. Being surrounded by some thousands of these gentlemen, all of them standing over six feet in height and all carrying beautifully sharp knives, I came to the conclusion that it was perhaps better to pay the few francs demanded.

I then made my way back to the hotel and informed the manager, a very live young Frenchman, of what had occurred. He at once reached for his hat and said we would go back and settle the matter. I suggested that it was perhaps bothering him, and that as I was going away in a couple of days he might settle the matter at his leisure. Also that I was quite sure my ribs were not proof against Arab knives. He was not to be put off in seeing that justice was carried out.
So, unwillingly, I made my way to the spot and pointed out the man. The Frenchman spoke to him in Arabic,
and immediately my money was returned. He then suggested that the dark gentleman should follow him to the police court. Thereupon the Arab pleaded that the incident was closed,
and I must say I was filled with admiration for the Frenchman when I saw him grip the Arab and lift him
clean across his own little furnace and march him off through the crowd to the police court, or what stands for a police court in this place.

He came back to the hotel to tell me that the man had got 28 days' imprisonment for demanding money with menaces, and explained to me how important it was that no incident of this kind should be allowed to go disregarded. He thereupon added to my discomfort by suggesting that I should
at once take my camera and work my way back to the subject where I had been photographing and go on with the work. In vain I racked my brains
for some excuse, but as this Frenchman had put it to a Britisher there was nothing for it but to do as he suggested.

My French friend told me that he had commanded Arabs during the war,
and he said the Arab was a man possessed of a very keen sense of justice.
If an Arab had done wrong you could punch him out of shape and he would not attempt to do you any harm; but,
he said, never punch an Arab unless you are certain he has done wrong, or
the first dark night is the night that you start for your long home.

The Last "Opry."

It has always been the custom in small towns to refer to all classes of theatrical performances as "oprys," perhaps because the playhouse is usually called the opera house. Not long ago a theatrical man was obliged to inspect the opera house of a Massachusetts town and found the janitor
busy holding down a rocking chair,
puffing quietly at an old clay pipe.

"Ah, Mr. Stage Manager, just the one I want to see," cheerfully spoke
the visitor.

"Can you tell me the name of the last show you had here?"

The janitor paused thoughtfully for a minute.

"I jest can't. It's clean gone from my memory." Then, yelling to some one in the rear, he asked:

"Hey, Ezzy, what was the last opry
we had here?"

"The last opry we had here," came the decisive answer, "was Albert Anderson's trained monkeys."—Houston

Russia's Potash Reserve.

According to advice received by the foreign department of Moody's Investors' Service, Professor Brianishnikoff, an internationally prominent agricultural chemist, has made an exhaustive study concerning the potash
deposits in Soviet Russia. Potash reserves in European Russia alone are estimated at 5,568,000,000 tons. (Parenthetically, it may be stated that the contents of the Alsatian potash basin,
now belonging to France, are estimated at 2,000,000,000 tons.) Of the total, 141,000,000 tons contain over 24
per cent of recoverable phosphorus;
about 1,707,000,000 from 18 to 24 per cent, while the contents of the balance range between 24 and 35 per cent.

Not So Good.

I am a bashful young girl, and seldom have anything to say when out with a beau.

The other night, after a long silence,
my beau said to me, "A penny for
your thoughts."

"Oh, they're not worth a penny,"
I answered.

After a pause, he said, "Were you
thinking of me?"

And I answered, "Yea."—Chicago

WOULD AVERT COAL STRIKE

Pinchot in Conference With Operators and Miners.

MEETING HELD AT HARRISBURG

Governor of Pennsylvania Places Before the Conference Statistical Information He Had Obtained From Divers Sources—Vice President Murray Representing President Lewis at the Parleys.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—Armed with statistical information, which he gathered by telephone, telegraph and conferences, Governor Pinchot today met the representatives of the anthracite operators and miners in conference here.

Pinchot definitely laid before the representatives his plans to avert an anthracite coal strike at midnight next Friday.

During the past few days the governor has worked for 18 hours a day "to amass all the information possible" on the anthracite mining industry of Pennsylvania. He explained to the operators' and miners' representatives his purposes and plans in summoning them here in an effort to keep the mines turning out coal, either under a new agreement or with some new temporary move, after the wage contracts expire on Aug. 31.

The representatives who were summoned to the conference arrived here shortly before the hour set for the conference. There were no preliminary conferences with any members of either group. It is understood that the miners will insist on practically the same terms they have held out for at the New York and Atlantic City conferences, the wage increase, check-off and an eight-hour day for all mine employees.

Pinchot's first effort is to reach an agreement with each group on the rockbottom basis on which they will continue to turn out the anthracite fuel. Several delegations came here from the Pennsylvania mining districts to urge both for and against a recession in the miners' demands.

Throughout the conferences Pinchot said he will act "as a representative of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania," and in that capacity alone. He is not the personal agent of President Coolidge in the controversy between the operators and miners, he said.

Reports of conditions and sentiments in the anthracite fields, statistics of wages, coal production and distribution and a statement of his legal powers under the laws of Pennsylvania were included in the information the governor gleams from a dozen sources.

In the place of John L. Lewis, international president of the miners, who is ill, Philip Murray of Pittsburgh, vice president of the United Mine Workers, is in charge of labor's delegation at the conferences.

SEE COMPROMISE

Officials at Capital Expect Settlement of Anthracite Fuss.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Governor Pinchot's plan for averting a hard coal shutdown contemplates a compromise between the deadlocked operators and miners, Washington officials predicted. The principal feature of such a settlement, it was said, would be a wage increase for the miners of possibly 5 or 10 per cent. With this basic question out of the way, those who have followed the controversy expect the check-off, and all other demands, to be cleared up without serious difficulty. Washington has been convinced for some time that both sides were eager for a settlement that would save their faces. The operators particularly are believed to be desirous of averting a tieup, because of a fear of the effect upon the industry of the government's plan to flood the anthracite consuming states with substitutes and to educate the people to the use of them.

More than $1,000,000 damage was done by hurricanes which recently swept the Atlantic coast of Central America.

Alfred Jensen, arrested with John Galloway on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Robert Jaeger, Black Hawk (Wis.) reclus, confessed that he struck the blows which caused Jaeger's death, according to Sauk county authorities. Robbery was the alleged motive.

POINCARÉ'S WORDS

France to Stay in the Ruhr District Until She Is Paid.

Paris, Aug. 27.—"Heaven helps those who help themselves. We stay in the Ruhr until we are paid."

These words in the speech of Premier Poincaré at Condorcourt definitely destroyed the last lingering hope that France would consent to make some concession to the British viewpoint in order to conserve the entente.

The premier spoke at the dedication of a plane commemorating the arrival of the first American at the trenches. "The American army broke the springs of the German military," he said lauding the part America played in the war and followed by expressing the regret that a Franco-American alliance had not resulted. "If Germany does not decide to pay, we will be forced to repeat 'pay or stay,'" said the premier. "It is vain to pretend that Germany has already paid 42,000,000,000 gold marks, or even 25,000,000,000, to the reparations commission, as stated by the Washington economic institute, an organization of which I never before heard. This false estimate by the Washington institute demonstrates what we would have to expect from international experts."

MADE SACRIFICE TO SAVE TREATY

Uncle Sam Surrendered Right to Fortify Philippines.

CONCESSION MADE TO BRITAIN

American Delegation to the Washington Armament Limitation Conference Conceded the Right to England to Fortify Singapore—Inside Story Told at the National Capital For the First Time.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The inside story explaining why the American delegation to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments surrendered the right to fortify the Philippine islands, while conceding the right to Great Britain to fortify Singapore, was told here for the first time.

In a nutshell, the situation was this:

Baron Kato, late Japanese premier, who headed the mikado's delegation, violently protested against the original proposal that both the Philippines and Singapore be exempt from fortification restrictions. He announced flatly that Japan would not enter into any of the treaties if she had to agree to both bases being developed, but that she would not object so strongly to just one of them.

Elihu Root, Kato and Balfour then got together in secret session and Mr. Root, in line with the American policy of making all concessions and asking none in return, readily submitted to the abandonment of the Philippines and the retention of Singapore for future fortification. "Save the treaty at all costs to the United States," was the prompting spirit.

The real question arose from the first draft of article 19 of the naval pact. But article 19 never appeared in print. American army and navy experts, who had assisted in drafting it as perfectly fair to all sides, never saw the article, they said, after it left their hands until it had been modified to suit the demands of Baron Kato, which singularly resulted to the benefit of Great Britain, with whom Japan was agreeing to abrogate her alliance of long standing.

Authorities here who related the incident pointed out as likewise highly significant that while Japan was objecting to two great military bases at Manila and Singapore, and threatening not to sign the naval treaty, she was allowed to escape without mention her own highly developed fortifications on the island of Formosa, and her great army maintained there on the pretext of exterminating bandits. It has been realized by American military strategists from the beginning that in the event of trouble between this country and Japan, the Philippines will be assailed from Formosa.

Unconditional Pardons Recommended for Twenty-two.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Unconditional pardons for the Sacramento group of political prisoners are recommended in a report made by Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania to the joint amnesty committee.

The Sacramento group includes 22 of the remaining 34 "free speech offenders" still serving sentences under the war-time espionage act.

Senator Pepper reported that he went into each case on its merits, adding: "Having determined in this way what the evidence was against each man, I next tried to allocate the items of evidence to the several counts in the indictment. In this connection I treated the counts as they had been treated by the court of appeals in the defended cases coming up from Chicago."

"Upon this analysis of the evidence and the allocation of the several counts, I came to the conclusion that such proof of violence as the record disclosed was referable either to counts adjudged invalid in the Chicago cases, or to the count under which the sentences imposed had all been served. This process left the only remaining count (espionage act count) with little or no support in the testimony."

LIEUT. COL. G. REINIGER

Developing Organized Reserve and National Guard Officers.

"My net conclusion was that in every case a pardon ought to be granted and I made a recommendation accordingly. In my judgment, pardons when granted in these cases should be unconditional. Annexing conditions seems to me to be inconsistent with the theory upon which pardon is recommended. The men ought to be in or out, and in either alternative without ifs and buts."

Speed Trap Warning Issued.
Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Statewide warnings to beware of speed traps, many of which are operated illegally, were issued by Fred H. Caley, president of the Ohio State Automobile association. Decriing practices which he labeled as "malicious, nefarious, and often criminal and brutal," Caley gave notice that the 74 automobile clubs affiliated with the Ohio association had embarked on an even more drastic campaign to run "fee-grabbing" squire and roadside constables out of their pernicious business.

Trampled by Horse.
Youngstown, O., Aug. 27.—Sergeant J. Reese of the United States army, here to break wild horses for the army service, is in a Youngstown hospital severely injured as a result of being kicked and trampled by a horse. He suffered injuries in the head, back and arms and a possible fracture of a leg and perhaps internal injuries. His home is in Kentucky.

Claims Record Wheat Yield.
Columbus, Aug. 27.—What is said to be Ohio's record wheat yield was made this year by Charles Karns, a Miami county farmer, who produced 527 bushels of wheat on 10 acres, an average of nearly 53 bushels per acre. He grows potatoes or corn, wheat and clover in rotation. Potatoes preceded this unprecedented wheat crop.

Luncheon Served on Flying Boat.
Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Luncheon was served to eight guests on the aeromarine flying boat Balboa, while traveling at a speed of 65 miles an hour, 500 feet in the air. Five of the guests were served in the forward cabin and three in the rear. It is said to be the first time luncheon was served under such circumstances.

Injured a Second Time.
New Lexington, O., Aug. 27.—David Middaugh, 30, world war veteran, sustained a crushed left arm when it was caught in machinery at a Junction City plant. He had just returned to work after being in the hospital for two months from injuries received at the same plant when he was caught in an elevator shaft.

Minister Missing.
Toledo, Aug. 27.—Search for Rev. Andrew McMahon, 58, of this city, was begun by Chicago police on request of his wife, who declared he disappeared two weeks ago. Mrs. McMahon said her husband had been in ill health and that she believed he may have gone to Chicago.

Shoots Wife and Self.
Athens, O., Aug. 27.—McKinley Locke, 26, went to Millfield and tried to make good his threats of murder and suicide. He shot his wife through the leg and then turning the weapon on himself sent a bullet through his chest near the heart. Surgeons say there is a chance he will recover.

Suspect Held.
Kenton, O., Aug. 27.—Hugo Wendland, 24, claiming Nebraska as his home, is held here as a suspect in connection with the murder of Sheriff William Van Camp at Brookville, Ind., two weeks ago.

DEAD KLANSMAN IS IDENTIFIED

Dozen Persons in Hospitals, Either Shot or Stabbed.

RESULT OF MIDNIGHT CLASH

State, County and Municipal Officials Co-operating at Pittsburgh and Vicinity in Measures to Prevent a Renewal of the Rioting—Leading Undertaker in Carnegie Placed Under Arrest.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—State, county and municipal authorities are co-operating in measures to prevent a renewal of the rioting which Saturday midnight resulted in the death of one man and the injury to many others, when a Ku Klux Klan parade attempted to enter Carnegie, a suburb, following the biggest conclave ever held by the order in this country.

The body of the klansman shot to death was identified in the county morgue as that of Thomas Abbott, 27, of Atlasburg, Washington county. At least a dozen persons are in local hospitals either shot or stabbed, and probably a hundred others are suffering from broken bones, bruises or minor wounds. The identity of those in hospitals is being carefully guarded, all information being refused by the hospital authorities on the ground that those receiving treatment for injuries suffered in the rioting are private patients. Well known men are reported to be among these patients.

Patrick McDermott, a leading undertaker of Carnegie, is in the county jail on the order of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, along with three other Carnegie men, C. K. Flaherty, Joseph Joyce and George Kimmel. It is understood all four will be held pending an inquest into Abbott's death.

Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the knights of the Ku Klux Klan, addressed a meeting of klansmen, klansleagues and higher officers of the organization in Pennsylvania in the English room of the Fort Pitt hotel, and he announced that a reward of $2,500 would be paid for the arrest and conviction of "the murderer or murderers of Klansman Abbott."

In an official statement Evans declared that the fatal fight was caused by an attack on klansman exercising their constitutional right "of peaceable assembly, free speech and free movement over the highways," by "an element of citizenry absolutely dangerous to the safety and cause of freedom."

Members of the Ku Klux Klan and their enemies are in an ugly mood and fresh outbreaks are feared. State police, county detectives and local police are keeping close watch for signs of trouble. Investigations are under way with a view to ascertaining the identity of the persons who fired into the head of the Klan parade as it was about to cross the bridge leading from Glendale to Carnegie.

Why the Anthracite Miners Will Not Accept Arbitration.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 27.—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, who is ill at his hotel here, went into details as to some of the reasons why the miners would not accept arbitration. He called attention to the fact that the miners have repeatedly asked for arbitration in the West Virginia fields, and at the present time there is a strike of 8,000 English-speaking miners in Maryland, where the operators have not only refused arbitration, but have even refused to deal with the officials of the union. "It is only where the mine workers in the pride of their strength are able to protect their own interests that arbitration is offered us for the purpose of stripping us of our armor," he declared. Mr. Lewis said that he was not a public officer, but that he was employed by the mine workers to represent them.

Run Over by Truck.
Columbus, Aug. 27.—Ellen Hines, 4, daughter of William Hines, is in a critical condition as result of having been run over by an automobile truck in front of her home.

Struck by Automobile.
Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Hildegarde Zangerle, 7-year-old daughter of County Auditor John A. Zangerle, was struck by an automobile and seriously injured.

SUSPECT "SWEATED"

Denies Any Connection With Murder of the Girl Bride.

Denver, Aug. 27.—Elsie Jorgensen Suttle, pretty 14-year-old girl bride, was murdered because she would not break her marriage vows for a former lover. The murderer is believed to have gone to the Suttle home in Colorado Springs with murder in his heart and either a 45-caliber revolver or a hammer in his pocket. While the slayer was hammering the life out of Elsie with his weapon, he pressed his knee on her chest with such force that her body was crushed in.

Jacinto Fernandez, Spanish youth, arrested by Denver police in connection with the crime, defied an all day grilling by police of this city and Colorado Springs. Termed the "hard-boiled sheik" by detectives conducting the probe into the slaying of Elsie, with head thrown back and eyes blazing, he punctured his cross-questioning with "find out if you can." The detectives intimated that evidence obtained both in Colorado Springs and Denver makes the case a strong one against Fernandez. Principal among the evidence is a packet of five "Jack" love notes, blood saturated, which were found beneath the pillow of the slain girl bride.

Clue In Kidnaping Case.

New York, Aug. 27.—The mystery surrounding the kidnaping of three-months-old Lillian McKenzie remains unsolved, but what is hoped may develop into a promising clue came from Manassas, Va., when two letters were received here telling of the discovery of an abandoned baby in that town. The child, about the same age as Baby Lillian, answers in a general way the description of the kidnaped infant. The authorities are investigating.

Burglars Loot Dwelling.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 27.—Burglars who last night ransacked the home of Fred Labelle, secretary of the chamber of commerce, carried off loot valued at $10,000. Mr. Labelle reported to police. The loss included silverware, jewelry, clothing and even a radio outfit.

Superstitions of Seamen.
If a man is ill at sea, his most critical time is when land is first sighted. If he survive an hour after the sighting of land he will recover. On some trawlers whistling is forbidden—it scares away the fish. Other skippers believe that to wash your face in the middle of a trip will break a spell of calm weather.

Being a Politician.
You cannot help being a politician. You cannot live for an hour without being a politician. But what a man generally means when he says that he is not a politician I am afraid is this—that he has been all his life enjoying his political privileges and grossly neglecting his political duties.—Rev. Hugh Price Hughes.

Hand-Made Frocks for Summer Wear

Inexpensive Dresses Suitable for Home, Porch or Garden.

An innovation in cotton dresses has been reached by prominent American manufacturers, who have created charming but inexpensive frocks that are entirely made by hand and are ideal for morning wear either in the home, on the porch or in the garden. Despite their nominal cost, says a fashion authority in the New York Tribune, they are not only made by hand, but are hand-embroidered, their workmanship vying with the delicate needlework seen on dresses sent to us from France.

Frocks of this sort have been taken up with great enthusiasm by the shops throughout the country, where they are in great demand, as women are quick to grasp clothes that are attractive and colorful as well as comfortable. The materials used—ginghams and chambrays—have been chosen in preference to linens, as they retain their freshness, whereas linen would be less practical for a garment of this sort.

The trimmings employed on these frocks are applied motifs of sateen, gingham or linens applied to the dress with hand-embroidery, hand-embroidered monograms, drawn-work, Egyptian cross-stitching and needlework in floral effects.
The chemise model with short sleeves is the basis of all these dresses—not the perfectly straight-cut chemise, but one with fullness at the sides of the skirt, the fullness achieved either by gathers or plaits.

One particularly striking model is developed from yellow and white-checked gingham. It has a collar, cuffs, belt and pockets of tan chambray stitched with bright red threads. On the bodice and pockets there is an embroidered monogram done on chambray and then applied to the dress.

Another frock of this sort is of tan and white-checked gingham combined with tan chambray. The bodice, which is of the plain colored fabric, has trimming bands of the gingham worked with a cross-stitch design done in red and black threads. The same dress may be had in different hues gingham with needlework in a harmonizing color.

Hand-drawn work and dot embroidery done in white trim a charming dress of green chambray. The threads are drawn down the front of the dress, on the waist and on the sleeves. A similar model of tan chambray is also worked in white, while one of blue and white gingham is trimmed with a cross-stitching done in yellow and red.

The New Sweaters.

Jacquette sweaters that fasten smartly at the side with pearl or ivory buckle are most effective in today's styles when worn with skirts which match the sweaters in some stripe or pattern rather than as a whole. A desert-tinted sweater, for example, looks its best with a skirt in lighter tan which has a pattern of desert and orange.

Suits of Silk.

Silk suits are being shown in great quantities by the New York shops. Several of those seen were of black canton with a knife-plaited skirt and round-necked jacket done in all-over embroidery of gold and king's blue. Another model, this one three-piece, was of navy roshanara with clre ribbon bands in mist gray.

Winsome Cape Made Entirely of Ribbon

The very beautiful cape made entirely of ribbon, is of slate gray and varies in shade, becoming darker toward the hem. The hat is of tan horsehair, trimmed with self-colored lace.

Newest Set-in Sleeve, Full Under-Arm Line

This model illustrates the smart use of stripes. The semi-sports tailleur presents the new set-in sleeve, a full under-arm line and beautifully embroidered pockets.

Imported Fall Hats Display Gay Colors

Judging from the summary of colors made by the style reporters of the Retail Millinery Association of America from the early imports of French hats for fall, the season will be almost as colorful as the current one. This is what the association's bulletin has to say about it:

"The entire brown family will score again. Amethyst is suggested by the leading modistes. Some bright yellow is seen, but it is an open question as to whether it will remain very long. Bottle green is seen a good deal, and bright Egyptian blue tones up the autumn range. Indigo and navy are in the forefront of the blues.

"The current red vogue promises to be toned down to wine shades for the next season, with coral and geranium. Dark seal and Titian brown promise very well. So does gray, but beige is doubtful. In the metallic colors silver has the call. A feature of the incoming hats is the exploitation of color in the facings of mushroom and cloche shapes.

"In the materials metal brocades show up very strongly, and the combination of panne velvet and felt is seen. Some use of long-nap hatters' plush is noted. Wide ribbons of satin and velvet are used to make entire hats. In band effects hatters' plush and Lyons velvet combine, but velvet of this type is easily the peerless fabric for fall."

Furnishings of Homes Civilization's Register

When you step into a tasteful, moderately-furnished room, do you realize, even in a small degree, what a factor the furnishing of your home is in the whole scheme of modern civilization?

The manufacturer and furniture dealer have as plain and manifest a duty in educating the home-maker in the selection of furniture as you have in preaching civic beauty and higher moral standards.

When you assist in creating the home of taste you are ministering to culture and intelligence. One cannot very well continue without the other.

It is a proven fact that no home maker can associate himself with household goods in which the kindred quality of each is well established and inter-related, without being improved by the contact.

Mental efficiency, moral breadth and social uplift are all promoted and maintained by our intimate environment.

And what environment is more constant than good furniture?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Plain Tailor-Mades for Fall and Winter Wear

The fall and winter seasons of 1923-4 will witness a gain in production and distribution of plain and semiplain dress goods.

With the heads, backs and busts of women everywhere decorated with embroidery, it seems to be a logical conclusion that the smart set will be driven to the other extreme, viz., plain tailor-mades, if they wish to appear as being distinctively dressed.

In the exclusive New York shopping district one notes coat dresses made from navy blue worsted twills and bearing all the earmarks of a skilled ladies' tailor.—Dry Goods Economist.

Modern Cabinets.

The modern cabinets are so attractive in their proportions and finish, and possess a certain mysterious interest suggested by their closed doors, that they are considered almost indispensable for the living room made to live in.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

HOOSIER
—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operator. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held, which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOSIER in your home.

TRACE WORLD WAR TO SERB COLONEL

Made Effort Too Late to Avoid Tragedy at Sarajevo.

AFTERWARD LOST HIS LIFE

Lieut.-Col. Dragutin Dimitrijevitich, former leader of the military party in Serbia and chief opponent of the civilian group led by Premier Nicholas Pashitch in the summer of 1914, was the principal character in the plot which resulted in the murders of Serajevo on June 28, 1914, that started the world-wide conflagration, according to Prof. Stanoye Stanoyevitch of the University of Belgrade, who has written a pamphlet, "The Murder of Archduke Franz Ferdinand: A Contribution to the History of the Origin of the World War."

Professor Stanoyevitch says that his information was obtained from statements made by persons in close touch with the situation at the time of the murder. His charge cannot be denied by Dimitrijevitich himself, as the latter was court-martialed and shot in 1917; nor can Major Voyislav Tankozitch, the right-hand man of Dimitrijevitich, be called as a witness, as he fell in action early in the war.

The Serbian professor's pamphlet, just translated into German and published in Frankfurt, confirms the generally accepted theory that the Serbian government knew nothing about the plot, something admitted even by the leading Austrian statesmen; but it goes further and gives a plausible explanation of what nerved the arm of Gavrilo Princip, the boy slayer of Franz Ferdinand and his wife, Hermann Wendel, a German writer well acquainted with Balkan politics, in summarizing Professor Stanoyevitch's work, says:

"In order to make plausible the situation among the Serbs from which developed the thought of killing the most visible representatives of the Danube monarchy, he outlines with sure strokes a century and a half of Serbian, indeed of South Slavic, development, and shows how the holding down of an elementary popular movement by the dynastic selfishness of the Hapsburgs was bound to exercise an evil, poisonous effect upon the minds of the masses.

"Of course, it was only among the revolutionary youth of the South Slavic part of Austria-Hungary where the ferment of action was working, for two successful, but also costly, wars had inspired all circles of the kingdom of Serbia with a desire for the longest possible peace. This desire was shared by the officers' corps, in which, since the murder of Alexander and Draga Obrenovitch in 1903, some symptoms inimical to the peaceful development of the state had shown themselves.

Enter the Leader. "Partly for the protection of their persons and partly also for the safeguarding of their personal interests, the officers participating in the conspiracy later formed an organization that more than once sought to influence the course of domestic politics. But the more the new conditions became firmer, through the development of democratic institutions, and the more the attempts at interference by this unconstitutional factor were resisted by the bourgeoisie, the more the group of conspirators retreated to the background of the stage of politics.

"But when the annexation crisis was working mightily upon the souls of all Serbs, the officer-conspirators of 1903 got into action. Because they regarded the patriotic society 'Narodna Odbrana,' which arose in connection with the annexation crisis, as of a purely cultural nature, a number of them in 1911 founded the secret league 'Ujedinjenje ili Smert' (Unity or Death), which soon had 300 members. It was modeled on the Italian Carbonari societies, and, quite in the style of old-fashioned conspiratorial romanticism, strove to solve the Serbs' national problem through revolutionary means and acts of terror.

"At the head of this league stood a man who seemed created to be a conspirator. As a twenty-seven-year-old Captain Dragutin Dimitrijevitich had, through his energy on the occasion of making away with the last of the Obrenovitchs, removed an unexpected obstacle from the road. Since then the gifted and educated officer, who in the meantime had advanced to lieutenant-colonel on the general staff, had remained the same restless character. An honest man, a fiery patriot, but also filled with stormy ambition, passionately in favor of secret, underground activities, dogmatic and not free from vanity, he exercised his fascinating power over the younger officers in particular. His most devoted comrade was Major Voyislav Tankozitch, who, under a quiet and mild exterior, concealed an unbridled and undisciplined nature and who, as a leader of roving bands in Macedonia, had displayed reckless courage. About political affairs, about the real needs of a state, they both had only faint and vague conceptions, but Dimitrijevitich was very determined in carrying out what he had in his head.

"After the meeting of Franz Ferdinand and Wilhelm II in Knopisht, Dimitrijevitich, then chief of the information division of the general staff, received news from the Russian general staff to the effect that the Haps-

burger and the Hohenzollern, there by the blossoming roses, had agreed upon an attack by Austro-Hungary upon Serbia, with German backing. Reports that he received from confidential men on the other side of the border about the coming maneuvers in Bosnia strengthened his conviction that these military exercises were to form the immediate prelude to the planned attack.

Plotting the Murder. "Longer deliberation caused him to reach the conclusion that only the removal of the Austro-Hungarian heir apparent, whom he regarded as the chief war propagandist, could save his unprepared and weary fatherland from the horrors of invasion and defeat. The idea of violence no longer frightened him, for several months before he had already agreed with a Bulgarian revolutionary committee upon an unexecuted attack upon Ferdinand of Coburg, and he had also once before sent a former leader of lawless bands to Vienna for the purpose of murdering Franz Josef or Franz Ferdinand.

"The course of events so willed it that just as he was considering the translation of his thoughts into acts two young men from Bosnia with the same intention came to see Major Tankozitch and ask him for advice and aid. With his customary determination, Dimitrijevitich took charge of the matter, had the Bosnians instructed in the use of arms by Tankozitch and then sent them to Serajevo. On June 15 the colonel revealed to a meeting of the executive committee of the organization 'Unity or Death' what was going on, giving expressly as the reason for his action the necessity of preventing an attack upon the homeland by the big neighbor. If German war guilt philologists have all too innocently explained the war by Austro-Hungary upon Serbia as 'Prophylaxis Against the World War,' in Dimitrijevitich's way of thinking the murder of Franz Ferdinand was 'Prophylaxis Against the Austro-Serbian War.'

"But none of the members of the executive committee, except Tankozitch, would have anything to do with the deed planned, and they implored Dimitrijevitich to abandon his project. He promised to do so, and 'it appears,' says Stanoyevitch, 'that he made such an attempt, but either it was too late or the plotters in Serajevo would not obey him. Things took their fatal course.'

"But if Dimitrijevitich, as the principal organizer of the attack, was not the very highest, but still was a high officer in an important post, the very fact of his guilt testifies to the complete innocence of the Serbian government. After both Balkan wars the victorious officers' corps, and above all the 'Unity or Death' society, had become somewhat presumptuous and was striving for influence upon political matters. Especially in the newly-won territory, in south Serbia, there were violent clashes between the military and civilian authorities. An order establishing the superiority of the civilian power had to be recalled under pressure of the secret league, and in the summer of 1914 Pashitch, the leader of the civil government, and Dimitrijevitich, chief of the military party, were facing each other as bitter, irreconcilable opponents.

"The conflict continued during the war, and in the spring of 1917 Dimitrijevitich was court-martialed—on a charge of having organized on the Saloniki front an attempt to murder Alexander, the heir to the throne, and to proclaim a military dictatorship—condemned to death and shot in June."

HISTORIC PISTOL FOUND

Firearm Is Estimated to Be at Least 200 Years Old.

A brass flintlock pistol, said to be more than 200 years old, was thrown up by a dredge in the Cowlitz river at Longview, Wash., and discovered by A. N. Thorndike.

The pistol was in perfect state of preservation with the exception of the handle, which was rotted off. The weapon was untarnished and unstained and bore upon one side a London trade mark. On the other side was a crest, consisting of a crown set above a crossed sword and gun. The gun was sent to a Portland gunsmith who estimated that it had been made more than 200 years ago. It is now on its way to London where it is hoped, some clew may be found as to its age, the former owner and something of the history surrounding it.

Most of the year's work, numerically, consisted of 58,704,000 standard silver dollars, struck to replace those melted to provide bullion for the use of England in the East Indies. Other coinage included 1,597,000 gold double eagles, 538,000 dimes, 12,049,000 nickels and 1,431,000 pennies.

The coinage for Peru included 1,000,000 one sol silver pieces and 2,000,000 nickel five centavos. For Nicaragua the output was 500,000 one centavos and 400,000 half centavos.

FREAK TEMPLE IN MOSCOW

Cathedral of St. Basil Possesses an Amazing Variety of Towers That Are Unique.

The cathedral of St. Basil (also known as the Pokrovsky cathedral) in the Red square, Moscow, is one of the architectural freaks of the world on account of its towers, all differing from each other and representing in their variety of colors pineapples, melons and the like, says the Detroit News. It was begun in 1554 and was not completed till 1679. Plundered and desecrated by the French in 1812, it was restored in 1839-45.

The Uspensky cathedral, one of the sacred buildings in the Kremlin, Moscow, contains the oldest and most venerated holy pictures in Russia, as well as numerous relics of saints. The cathedral was built in 1475-79 by the Bolognese architect Fioraventi, in the Lombardo-Byzantine style, with Indian cupolas. The building has been restored several times after being pillaged or burned.

Sheep Lived Long, Though Staked.

When the sheep were mustered for shearing on a Nebraska farm one was found to be badly "staked." A piece of wood 2 1/2 feet long entered the shoulder blade and came out under the belly. The end of the stick was touching the ground and had been worn smooth by the continual contact. Obviously the accident had happened some time before, as the flesh at the entrance was healed up, though the underneath wound was a bit raw. Ten minutes after the stake was pulled out the animal died.

A turtle, seven feet long and weighing 1,000 pounds, was landed at Douardenez, France. After taking a survey of the place, it plunged into the sea, promising no doubt in its own mind to give Douardenez a wide berth in the future.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

Oozing Fountain Pens.

An application of heavy oil to the joints of a fountain pen will effectively overcome the oozing out of ink at these places, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The types of fountain pens, having points which disappear by turning a section of the barrel, sometimes leak because of wear. To remedy this, soak the pen in warm water and permit to dry, particularly inside. Then apply oil on the spindle that is revolved. Heavy cylinder oil is the best for the purpose. The lubricant should be worked through the bearing from end to end. The pen is then refilled and excess oil wiped off.

PETER KESLER

Prominent Fairfield County Farmer
Dead—Burial Tuesday Afternoon.

Peter Kesler, a prominent retired farmer died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodore Lape, in Amanda, Fairfield county Ohio, Saturday, August 25, at 1:30 o'clock at the age of 92 years, six months and 21 days.

Mr. Kesler was born at Amanda February 4, 1831 and served during the Civil war in Company I, of the 38th regiment. He was married to Mary, daughter of Thomas Barr, who departed this life February 4, 1894.

To this union nine children were born three of whom preceded their father in death. He leaves to mourn their loss the following children: William, of Columbus; Ella, wife of Theodore Lape, Amanda; Perry, of Cleveland; Maggie, wife of Elmer Kesler, of Texas; Laura, wife of George Cruit, of Lancaster and Edith, wife of William Cromley, of Lancaster. Twenty-five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and a large circle of relatives and friends.

The funeral will take place at the Lutheran church at Amanda at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Burial at Dutch Hollow cemetery. The deceased was a brother-in-law of William Heffner of this city.

Deceased was the grandfather of Mrs. T. P. Brown and Mrs. J. Wallace Crist, of this city, and Mrs. Clyde Brinker, of Ashville.

Sunday was the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the first Lutheran Synod in America. On that date in 1748, 27 years before the Revolutionary war, six ministers and 24 lay delegates met in Philadelphia. The ministers were Muhlenberg, patriarch of American Lutheranism, Brandholtz, Hand-Hanschub and Kurtz, representing Pennsylvania; Provost Sandin of the Swedish churches along the Delaware and Hartwig of New York. The lay delegates reported concerning the efficiency of their pastors and the pastors reported the condition of their parochial schools. The common liturgy was examined and adopted, and after congratulatory addresses the new synod adjourned to meet the following year in Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

The organization was known at first as the "United Pastors," and the parishes as the "United Congregations." Later the name "Ministerium of Pennsylvania" was adopted. Only 10 of the 70 Lutheran congregations in Pennsylvania and adjacent colonies joined in the organization at first, but it grew rapidly, created a spirit of independence and self-reliance in the Lutheran churches in the colonies and set the example for synodical organization along the coast.

Itinerant pastors went as ministers into all of the colonies surrounding Pennsylvania grouped together the Lutheran people there into congregations, later leading to the founding of the Ministerium of New York, the Synod of North Carolina, the Synod of Ohio and others.

DEMPSEY AT WORK

Society Folk Turn Out to See the Champion Do His Stuff.

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Aug. 27.—Approximately 2,000 persons parted with $1.10 each to see a world's champion do his stuff. And the afore-said world's champion gave 'em everything he had in the matter of fist-cutting effort. It was society day at the camp and more social lights and millionaires were in the crowd than history ever saw a fist champion do his training tricks. Jack Dempsey started the entertainment with a bit of pulley work and then followed with shadow boxing. After that came three bouts of two rounds each, then some work against the heavy punching bag, with the show topped off with some nifty work on the inflated bag.

VOTERS AT POLLS TODAY

Cosgrave Likely to Be Returned to Power in Ireland.

Dublin, Aug. 27.—The whirlwind campaign preceding the Irish elections ended last night in a perfect welter of oratory. More than 4,000 meetings, held in every part of Ireland, have prepared the men and women for the most heated election in memory. All impartial estimates of the results of today's polling indicate that President William T. Cosgrave will be returned to power. The meetings of the campaigns have for the most part been orderly and good humored, with few interruptions of speakers. The polls will close at 7 p. m. There is a total cessation of work of all kinds.

Just Wishing.

A little boy was visiting one day in a home where a woman was baking a cake. While she was beating the chocolate icing, he looked up at her wistfully, and said: "I wis' some of that chocolate would splash up in my face."

GAS THE BORERS

September or Early October is Best Time Says Entomologist.

When paradichlorobenzene first came into use for gassing peach tree borers three years ago, August was thought to be the best time to lay the rings of the substance around the trees. Subsequent experience in Ohio and elsewhere has indicated however, that August is a little early.

Wait until September or early October advises T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State university. But don't put it too late in October, he adds, as there must be sun enough to vaporize the powder, and allow the heavy gas to seep down into the ground, asphyxiating the borers.

Among commercial peach growers in the east and south, paradichlorobenzene has all but done away with "worming" the borers out with a knife, a tiresome and only half effective method. All of those who have given the new chemical trial according to directions report around 90 per cent borer control at a cost of but three cents a tree and without any discernible damage to young trees.

But trees less than six years old should not be treated with paradichlorobenzene, Professor Parks adds and around no tree should one put more than three-quarters of an ounce of the chemical.

The chemical is laid in a ring on firm soil around the tree trunk. Specific directions as to method will be given later and demonstrations probably will be held in the leading peach-growing counties.

MAY BE MONEY BERGDOLL

BURIED BEFORE HIS ESCAPE

With the assertion Sunday of Lee Houser, a 28 year old farmer living near Hagerstown, Maryland, that the box he dug up last week on the Brownsville-Weaverton road contained between $100,000 and $110,000 in bills, besides approximately $10,000 in gold coin, speculation grew as to whether the money is that buried by Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, before his flight to Germany.

Complicating the situation was the assertion of C. S. Wheeler, a farmer, that he would lay claim to the fortune. Wheeler said his 10 year old son, Howard, is entitled to the money since he was the first to find it. Wheeler said his son was seated on a bank beside the road when Houser's pick exposed the box containing the money. Wheeler says Houser tore the box from the boy's hands and made off with it.

CHARGE GERMANS BRING DOWN FRENCH AIRPLANES

Many Recently Lost in Ruhr Starts Strange Theory.

Paris.—A startling theory has been propounded to account for the number of airplanes belonging to the Paris-Prague service which have fallen in German territory.

It is believed by many officers of the French air service in the Rhineland and the Ruhr that the Germans have discovered a means of stopping the action of the magnets of airplanes in flight. The Germans are credited with first having found a way in Berlin to stop automobiles within a specified area and the French believe they have applied the method to airplanes.

The pilots and passengers forced to land are allowed to go free, but the plane and the freight it may be carrying are confiscated, the machine being, according to French reports, sawed to pieces.

Since January 1 Germany has regained the liberty of the air, so far as civil aviation is concerned, under the Versailles treaty, but they are unable to prevent foreign military planes from flying over German territory. Since the occupation of the Ruhr began they have refused to supply any weather reports which are so necessary to successful operation of the air services.

Sir Walter Raleigh's Pipe on Exhibition

Automatic Car Control to Stop All R. R. Wrecks

Philadelphia.—Tests of an automatic train control system, under practical operating conditions on the Pennsylvania railroad between Lewistown Junction and Sunbury, Pa., justify hopes that the system may provide a successful solution of the problem of preventing train collisions automatically, regardless of human failures, the company announced.

The system has been in operation throughout the Lewistown branch since July 11.

The system is a combination of electrical, pneumatic and mechanical devices applied both to the track and to the locomotives. These devices slow down, or, when required, bring to a complete stop, any train which approaches too closely to another on the same track, whether going in the same or opposite direction or when switches are improperly left open.

Watsonville, Cal.—Although Carl Lee, nineteen, was cut in two by a train on which he was a stowaway near here, he not only lived for twenty minutes but was conscious long enough to talk in detail to hospital attendants.

He gave his age and home address, and explained that he was "beating" his way about the country. He said his mother was Mrs. Nettie Lee, Route O, Box 174, Indianapolis. He was attempting to alight from the train, he said, when he fell under the wheels. Physicians said the lad displayed extraordinary vitality and courage.

Crow Awakens Friend in Time for Work

The Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"You seem in a good humor this morning," said the House Detective.

The Hotel Stenographer wiping off her typewriter was humming a merry little tune.

"Have you ever seen me any other way in the early morning?" she demanded.

"No," mused the House Detective.

"I don't believe I ever have."

"You never will," declared the girl.

"In the morning I am as eager for the day as a small boy for a sight of a circus. I always believe something wonderful is going to happen before the sun goes down or the rain dries up, as the case may be."

"Every day some one gets married or finds an oil well, or inherits money, or gets back an old sweetheart, or gets a new dress or finds a street car token or has some one invite them to the theater, or gets a dollar tip, or gets a love letter or has a nice compliment or gets a raise on pay or an unexpected kiss, or hears a funny story or goes to hear a man lecture on how the millium will, come when we have good roads everywhere, or discovers they can earn a run in a stocking so it will not show, or sees an airplane zoom overhead, or hears a little child laugh or scratches an itchy place or gets well of the toothache, or learns to walk on a wooden leg, or gets a nice mess of liver and onions."

"They can't just go right on happening to some one every day and miss me all the time. In the early morning I never know which is going to happen to me so I always look forward to the day with a lot of interest and excitement."

"It is good to be Irish and reasonably good looking and to live in a world where so many nice things happen to nice people, and you can't ever tell what old Lady Fate has up her sleeve besides the freckles on her elbows and I just know something nice is going to happen to me today."

MIAMI COUNTY FARMER CLAIMING RECORD YIELD.

What is said to be Ohio's record wheat yield was made this year by Charles Karns, a Miami county farmer, who produced 527 bushels of wheat on 10 acres, an average of nearly 43 bushels per acre.

He grows potatoes, or corn, wheat and clover in rotation. Thus potatoes preceded this unprecedented wheat crop. The clover, before the potatoes, had a dressing of manure, and, when turned under, 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre were applied for potatoes. After digging that crop, the field was doubled disked and dragged and wheat seeded the first week in October with 200 pounds per acre of a 2-10-2 fertilizer. Two bushels per acre of certified Gladden seed were used.

"Good seed, good culture practices, legumes, manure, fertilizer, proper seeding," is Mr. Karns' program of wheat culture.

TO BANISH WARS

Harding Made Appeal to Newspapers to Co-operate in Move.

New York, Aug. 27.—Walter Wellman, newspaper man, author and polar explorer, gave the text of a letter written to him by the late President Harding, in which Mr. Harding made an appeal to the newspapers throughout the country to co-operate in a move to banish wars for all time. The letter, which was written especially for the editors of all American newspapers, but sent directly to Mr. Wellman, made it plain that Harding was not in favor of this country entering the league of nations, but expressed the conviction that a way would be found "to world association and attending world understanding."

To Retain Dr. Sawyer.

Washington, Aug. 27.—It was announced at the white house that Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer will be retained as physician to President Coolidge. Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, who as medical officer of the presidential yacht Mayflower has served for the past two years as assistant white house physician, will be retained in that capacity.

Garlic Cause of Big Wheat Loss

Makers of Flour Discriminate Against Product Containing It.

Wheat containing the bulblets of garlic or wild onion is discriminated against by millers and often is sold at a price ranging from 20 to 50 per cent lower than No. 2 Soft Red Winter, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The farmer in the Atlantic coast region from Massachusetts to Georgia and as far inland as Missouri, where garlic is prevalent, harvests the garlic bulblets with his wheat. These are about the size and shape of wheat grains, and the two are difficult to separate, so that wheat containing them can be sold only at a discount. Bread made from garlicky flour, especially if eaten warm, has a pronounced odor and garlicky flavor. The money loss from garlicky runs into millions of dollars annually.

Damage and Loss.

A survey made by the department of the damage and loss resulting from this weed in the state of Maryland and part of Pennsylvania where it is particularly bad, shows that practically all wheat produced in Maryland is infested with garlic. Garlicky wheat has a decidedly lower milling value than wheat free from garlic, due to the greater risk from spoilage, to extra cleaning or preparation required for milling, to the lower flour yields obtained, to the greater cost of manufacture, and to the lower market value of the flour product. Discounts for flour made from garlicky wheat vary from 25 cents to $1 a barrel.

Bulblets Sown Each Year.

Methods of eradication through readily applicable cultural practices suggested by the department have proved to be successful wherever employed, yet the survey shows that large quantities of the bulblets are being sown each year, through failure to get clean seed or through a failure to realize the extent of infestation in the seed being sown. Estimates made from samples taken from grain drills in the Maryland fields in the fall of 1921, show that as high as 200,000 bulblets to the acre were sown with the wheat in one case, the minimum being around 3,000 per acre. Nearly every farmer interviewed admitted that there was a small amount of garlic in his wheat, but frequently this small amount upon analysis proved to be 50 or more bulblets for each pound of wheat.

Killing Potato Bugs by Using Arsenate of Lead

Arsenate of lead is one of the best poisons to use, and for a liquid spray should be mixed at the rate of 1.5 pounds of powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. In small amounts one-half ounce or one heaping tablespoonful to a gallon of water gives the same strength. A little water should first be added to the powder and stirred until it makes a thin smooth paste. This paste can then be stirred into the required amount of water and the solution is ready for use.

With a good duster or dust gun a mixture of one part powdered arsenate of lead and fifteen parts of air-slaked or hydrated lime will be quite effective in killing the beetles.

A mixture of one part of paris green to twenty parts of lime is also effective. If no duster is available the mixture can be applied by shaking it on the plants through a cheese-cloth bag. The dust sticks to the plants better if applied when the dew is on. —E. M. Page, Missouri Experiment Station.

Pasturing Sweet Clover to Prevent Woodiness

Sweet clover has been condemned by many because it grows too rank and becomes so woody that stock will not eat it. This is true if it is not pastured heavily enough to keep it down. But if enough animals are kept on it so that it does not get more than nine or ten inches high, new shoots will be produced continuously which will be tender and palatable. If enough stock is not available to keep the sweet clover at the proper height, part of it should be mowed for hay, say the agronomists of the Nebraska Agricultural college. It should be mowed high enough (leave stubble at least eight inches tall) so that plenty of live buds are left on the side of the stems to produce a new crop. Unlike alfalfa, it does not send up new shoots from the crown after it has attained considerable growth the second year.

Refilling Small Silos

When Somewhat Empty

Farmers with small silos, who cannot store enough silage to run them all winter, can make their supply last longer if they will cut their corn, shock it, and when the silo becomes somewhat empty refill with the shocked corn.

This kind of silage is better feed than the shocked corn direct from the field although it is not as good as the silage that was put into the silo when the corn was at the right age.

It has been found that placing new silage on the old will not hurt either, provided there is no moldy silage on the surface of the old silage.

THE NEWS

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

JOHN GAIL walked uneasily the length of the veranda, then came to stand before Linnette, with her bright quick glance and wistful smile. Linnette was a wistful, small person altogether. Perhaps it was her soft, shy appeal, which had caught Gerald Spaulding's exacting attention. John stopped before the low chair, in which Linnette sat sewing, and looked down upon her with something like compassion in his honest gaze.

"Friend," he began, "I want you to tell me the truth. Has Jerry Spaulding been making love to you? Because if he has—" John went on hastily, ignoring the flush of indignation which colored her cheek—"I must warn you, Linnette, that he is engaged to a girl in his own home city. Very best authority for the fact—the girl happens to be a particular friend of my mother."

"I know he has been taking you around a lot, and I know he is fascinating to women. Heaven knows why—some mysterious feminine illusion. And down in Georgia, where he spent last winter, one charmed pretty creature broke her heart over him. For got to mention this engagement of long standing while he courted the winter months away. Nearer home there's another fine girl who believes herself engaged to him. Linnette, has Spaulding been protesting love to you?"

The small head with its dark crown of hair was raised slowly. Linnette looked up from her work. The smile was there—it always had been a wistful smile.

"Don't bother yourself about Gerry and me, good friend," she said. "My heart shall not be broken like that of the poor young lady in Georgia. Neither shall I believe myself to be engaged to him. This girl whom your mother knows—what is she like, John?"

"A trusting creature, apparently. And, of course, adoring. Gerry would see to that. Linnette, I have been disturbed since he camped on your trail; feared—you might suffer. You who are so true would see only truth in others. And if Spaulding should care for you above all others—a possibility, Linnette—even then I could see no happiness ahead. You forgive me, friend." Smiling he used the familiar term between them—"for having to warn you?"

Linnette folded the sewing very carefully. Then she arose, and John had to take the gentle dismissal.

When he had gone she made her way back to where the trees grew low. Gerry had sat with her often beneath one bending tree.

The low humming of a song reached her, Gerry's vibrant tone sounding a theme through all.

"Linnette!" he called. "Linnette!" His smile of greeting was the same, his handclasp as eager.

"Gerald," whispered Linnette, and her face was white in the effort of speaking. "You are betrothed. Mrs. Gail is acquainted with your fiancée. Gerry was apparently amused.

"Engaged? Not quite, my Linnet. Josephine and I have been life-long friends. The engagement may be expected by our families, I'll admit. But when it happens I'll come to you with the news. So John Gail is jealous, like a vengeful woman."

"I came," Gerry went on, "to say good-by for a time. As short, believe me, as I can make it. Business calls. And if during my absence your friend should bring tidings of my association with the fair Josephine, remember, Linnette, we have been companions, more or less, since childhood. You will give me this rose you have worn for remembrance?"

Linnette gave him the rose. Very slowly, her wistful smile upon him, she fastened the flower to his coat.

He recalled the appealing charm of her as the train bore him later back to the city where were his deepest interests.

Josephine? Of course marriage would be the inevitable outcome.

He had postponed the inevitable; perhaps as often as feasible. The little girl down in Georgia had been most entrancing. And there was the affair of Lucia, wearing an old ring of his mother's in belief of her bond to him. But Linnette with her shy enchantment would be hard to forget. He had not considered that Josephine and her family would make preparation for the day he had so faithlessly planned. A wedding so near must be gone through with; unless Gerald decided to go back to the country town where Linnette lived. There was his promise to tell her, and there was the possibility that in her fondness for him she might yield to the plan of an elopement, providing his fondness for her proved as sincere as he now felt it to be. She was beneath the same bending tree where they had parted. He would try her affection abruptly. So Gerald told the news.

She did not answer. Her dear face wore its old wistful, sweet charm, sweeter in some indefinable way. John Gail came across the lawn toward them.

"Linnette has told you the news, Spaulding?" John asked. "We are married; today begins our honeymoon tour."

Throws Out Cooked Fish.

It is said that there is a volcanic peak in the Andes that throws out from time to time dainty morsels in the form of fish already fried. This peak is called the Tunguragua. Underneath the mouth of the volcano is a subterranean lake.

During an eruption the suction draws up quantities of water, carrying along the fish, which are cooked by the inferno through which they pass. That is the scientific explanation of the phenomenon. But the natives hold that when an eruption occurs, ruining their crops, the mystic spirit of the Tunguragua provides the fish so that they shall not want.

NEW FORD TYPES

Greater Demand as Public is Acquainted
With High Standards.

Detroit, Michigan, August 25:—Introduction of a higher radiator, bringing new and improved body lines to
all types of Ford cars, is announced
by the Ford Motor company.

The changes have just gone into effect and the various types are now in production.

While the larger radiator has been made standard on all types and while
it has made possible other better-
ments in body design, there is no
radical departure in construction, but rather a general improvement which
has resulted in more graceful lines.

The new radiator sets an inch and a half higher than the former and has
an apron at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect of the fender on either side, giving a highly finished
appearance to the front of the car.
The larger radiator also increases
cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new types is the Ford coupe which is of
entirely new body design and construction, resulting in a more trim
exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a greater luggage carrying capacity.

From the dash there is a graceful
sweep in the cowl to the radiator
bringing a pleasing effect to the front.
The doors are wide and open forward
making access and exit easy. They are heavily framed for rigidity and strength. The compartment at the rear has been enlarged to afford increased carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat, with divided cushions to afford easy filling of
the tank from the right side making
it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat. Ventilator in the cowl and a visor over the windshield add much to the attractiveness of the car. A new
rear fender of more sturdy character
also is a feature.

Interior fittings are of choice material and the arrangement of the
deeply cushioned seat has been effected so that at the rear there is a small recess shelf for carrying parcels. The rear vision window is much larger and oblong in shape. Door windows have been equipped with revolving type
window regulators and door locks are provided. Side windows are equipped with the lever type window lifters.

Marked, too, is the improvement in the Ford Door sedan. Highly popular since its introduction a year ago, because of its low, graceful lines, the car
now presents even much better lines
and a sturdier appearance.

This has been brought about by the installation of an entirely new cowl
with a graceful sweep from the dash
blending into the larger hood and radiator. The change also affords an increase in leg room for occupants of
the front seat.

In the open types, the touring car
and runabout, the cowl has been enlarged and flows in a graceful curve
to the higher hood.

The result brings a most pleasing effect to the exterior appearance of both types. The improvement in the touring car which came when the one
man top and slanting windshield were introduced, is greatly enhanced by the larger radiator, the car appearing
lower and more attractive than ever.
The effect on the roadster is likewise
most appealing, giving it a more rugged and sturdy appearance.

The new radiator also is extended
to the Ford truck chassis, affording
improved appearance and better cooling to delivery services.

These new Ford types and the generally recognized performance ability
of the Ford under all motoring conditions, promise to bring a greater demand than ever before as the public
becomes more fully acquainted with
the higher standards and greater
values which have been incorporated.
No changes are contemplated in prices.

KEEN ON JUSTICE

Sentiment One of the Strongest
Among Arabs.

Will Not Resent Punishment, but Deal Death to Man Who
Mistreats.

Mr. Harry Roundtree, when traveling through the French colony of Algiers, had a curious experience in Torggourt, an Arab village in the midst of a desert.

Here, he says, were Arab black-
smiths hammering wonderful knives
from filed steel. I photographed one of these men at work. I was alone,
and he demanded payment. When I refused, he was not to be put off by
a poor joke in bad French, but leaped
to his feet and snatched my camera.
This I rescued, but he then threatened to smash it with his hammer. Being surrounded by some thousands of these gentlemen, all of them standing
over six feet in height and all carrying beautifully sharp knives, I came to the conclusion that it was perhaps better to pay the few francs demanded.

I then made my way back to the hotel and informed the manager, a very live young Frenchman, of what had occurred. He at once reached for his hat and said we would go back and
settle the matter. I suggested that it was perhaps bothering him, and that as I was going away in a couple of days he might settle the matter at his leisure. Also that I was quite sure
my ribs were not proof against Arab knives. He was not to be put off in seeing that justice was carried out.
So, unwillingly, I made my way to the spot and pointed out the man. The Frenchman spoke to him in Arabic,
and immediately my money was returned. He then suggested that the dark gentleman should follow him to the police court. Thereupon the Arab pleaded that the incident was closed,
and I must say I was filled with admiration for the Frenchman when I saw him grip the Arab and lift him
clean across his own little furnace and
march him off through the crowd to
the police court, or what stands for
a police court in this place.

He came back to the hotel to tell
me that the man had got 28 days' imprisonment for demanding money with menaces, and explained to me how important it was that no incident of this kind should be allowed to go disregarded. He thereupon added to my discomfort by suggesting that I should
at once take my camera and work my
way back to the subject where I had been photographing and go on with the work. In vain I racked my brains
for some excuse, but as this French-
man had put it to a Britisher there was nothing for it but to do as he suggested.

My French friend told me that he had commanded Arabs during the war,
and he said the Arab was a man possessed of a very keen sense of justice.
If an Arab had done wrong you could punch him out of shape and he would not attempt to do you any harm; but,
he said, never punch an Arab unless
you are certain he has done wrong, or
the first dark night is the night that
you start for your long home.

The Last "Opry."

It has always been the custom in small towns to refer to all classes of
theatrical performances as "oprys,"
perhaps because the playhouse is usually called the opera house. Not long ago a theatrical man was obliged to inspect the opera house of a Massachusetts town and found the janitor
busy holding down a rocking chair,
putting quietly at an old clay pipe.

"Ah, Mr. Stage Manager, just the one I want to see," cheerfully spoke
the visitor.

"Can you tell me the name of the
last show you had here?"
The janitor paused thoughtfully for
a minute.

"I jest can't. It's clean gone from my memor." Then, yelling to some one in the rear, he asked:

"Hey, Ezry, what was the last opry
we had here?"

"The last opry we had here," came
the decisive answer, "was Albert Anderson's trained monkeys."—Houston

Russia's Potash Reserve.

According to advice received by the foreign department of Moody's Investors' Service, Professor Brianishnikoff, an internationally prominent agricultural chemist, has made an exhaustive study concerning the potash
deposits in Soviet Russia. Potash reserves in European Russia alone are estimated at 5,568,000,000 tons. (Parenthetically, it may be stated that the contents of the Alsatian potash basin,
now belonging to France, are estimated at 2,000,000,000 tons.) Of the total, 141,000,000 tons contain over 24
per cent of recoverable phosphorus;
about 1,707,000,000 from 18 to 24 per cent, while the contents of the balance range between 24 and 35 per cent.

Not So Good.

I am a bashful young girl, and seldom have anything to say when out
with a beau.

The other night, after a long silence,
my beau said to me, "A penny for
your thoughts."

"Oh, they're not worth a penny,"
I answered.

After a pause, he said, "Were you
thinking of me?"

And I answered, "Yea."—Chicago
